Moonies are being told lies

An answer for every question, says Livermore woman who left

Most "Moonies" are troubled and/or idealistic young people who are looking for something to fill the spiritual vacuum in their lives, but they are "lied to" by the Unification Church, according to a young Livermore resident who spent a year as a Moonie.

The young woman, who does not want her name published for personal reasons, came in contact with the Moonies through a dinner in San Francisco to which a friend invited her. From there she went to a "creative community project" on a Booneville ranch. There was a lot of talk about saving the world which gave her a sense of purpose and everytime she wanted to leave the ranch someone talked her out of it.

Not that the living conditions on the ranch were that great. Sleeping in sleeping bags was not bad, but looking back she thinks that someone should have blown the whistle on the conditions four or five small children were exposed to. No one really cared for them and they had to sleep in a trailer each night.

The woman's own child was in the care of her mother back in Livermore. The pull of the community and its promise of dispelling her loneliness, were so great that she didn't mind staying away from her child for awhile.

Gradually the "creative community" revealed itself to the initiates as a full - fledged church with its founder, the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, as "the second coming of Christ". Teamed up with his wife (his third one, the woman later learned) he Rev. Moon and spouse took on the title "First Parents". Your natural parents were okay, but the real way was shown by Moon and you should obey the "First Parents" in any disputes with your own natural parents. Apparently that's the reason so many parents of Moonies try to get court orders for release of their children from the Unification Church.

Was the woman brainwashed, as so many have accused Moon of doing?

There was just enough truth in what they told you to bring you along their line of thinking, said the young woman. And whenever you had a question, the people who ran the place had an answer.

After the ranch at Booneville, the woman was sent to the Atlantic seacoast and middle border states to sell flowers. She made $150 to $200 a day; nearly all of it went to the church, except

Jury analyzes murder causes in Dublin case

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — David Barker was the victim of a "latent homosexual" who forced him to help kill the Braeseke family in Dublin last August.

Or he willingly "aided and abetted" Barry Braeseke in the brutal, triple slaying of Barry's parents and grandfather.

Jurors will begin deliberations this morning after hours of emotion charged summations yesterday by opposing attorneys.

Barker, 16, and Braeseke, 20, are charged with the shooting deaths of Floyd and Barbara Braeseke and 80-year-old John Braeseke last year in the family's Betlen Drive home.

Speaking softly with occasional [illegible] punctuations of emotion, attorney Barry Morris told jurors young Barker was framed by a drug-ridden Barry.

Barry was using a gram of PCP a week, Morris said, and constantly under its influence.

He "sought to hook other, younger kids on this stuff," Morris continued. "He told them it was great stuff."

Referring to homosexual books found in Barry's room — but not in young Barker's — Morris said there was "something very perverted about Barry's ideas about boys, especially young boys."

"There is evidence that Barry is at least a latent homosexual," said Morris, claiming young Braeseke was "aggressive" in his "pursuit" of "younger boys."

He'd told all his friends he wanted to kill his parents, the Oakland attorney added, and asked them for their help.

Sixteen-year-old David, thrilled with the friendship of a 20-year-old "adult," never took the remarks seriously and told Braeseke he didn't want to hear them.

School strike off, council votes to ratify

The danger of a strike by Amador Valley Joint High School District teachers has all but abated with a recommendation Tuesday by the teachers' representative council to ratify a district contract proposal for 1976 through 1978.

Teachers were prepared to walkout Friday morning if the unit negotiating team had not returned a contract proposal by Thursday midnight.

Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association president Dave Woolworth said a general membership meeting set for this afternoon at 3 would hear the recommendation to ratify, and then vote. There are approximately 212 teachers in the bargaining unit which includes Amador Valley, Dublin, Foothill and Valley High Schools.

Teachers turned down a previous contract proposal some four months ago but, prior to the vote, no recommendation to ratify had been advanced by the representative council.

Tuesday's vote at Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin was 13-10 on the "final" contract proposal presented by the district to teacher leadership on April 1.

Woolworth said he and chief negotiator Enoch Haga reviewed the proposal during the Easter vacation and, when school resumed Monday, teacher negotiator Gary Poulos met with Carl Krause of the administration to smooth out remaining points of contention.

On the pivotal points of binding arbitration of grievances and per cent of wage increase, the administration is offering limited binding arbitration and a four per cent salary increase— the latter unchanged from three weeks ago, according to Woolworth, an industrial arts teacher at Dublin High School.

Woolworth also says a "no reprisals" clause (against certificated personnel) is not in the contract proposal to be voted on this afternoon, but neither is a "no concerted activities" (strike) section, which the district wanted.

Specific wording in the section on binding arbitration of grievances says, "binding arbitration shall be utilized if there is no substantial impact on the district."

The proposed contract also permits the teacher negotiating unit to reopen talks on salary, health and welfare benefits for 1977-78, similar to a contract signed by Livermore teachers several weeks ago.

Negotiations on those items could begin May 10.

Woolworth advised that if teachers turn down the contract proposal today, a walkout of teachers would almost certainly occur Friday morning.

Sup. Raymond makes county appointments

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Paul Moffatt of Dublin and Marlene Suliteanu of Pleasanton were appointed to a pair of county commissions yesterday by First District Supervisor Valerie Raymond.

She also picked Louie F. Rodriguez of Fremont to the county Commission for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency.

Moffatt, a pharmacist and owner of Drug City in Dublin, will serve on the Advisory Commission on Drug Abuse. Suliteanu was appointed to the Health Services Agency Sub-Area Council.

A founder of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, Moffatt is vice president of the Alameda County Pharmaceutical Association, chairman, Southern Alameda County Medi-Cal Utilization Review Committee, pharmacy consultant to the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton and to the C.U.R.A. (Brothers United in Reforming Addicts), and a current director of the chamber.

He was one of four names submitted by the county pharmaceutical association.

Suliteanu, of 4131 Crisfield Lane, is a graduate of Ohio State University with a Bachelors of Science degree in occupational therapy.

She has worked at the Schwab Rehabilitation Hospital in Chicago, the Stanford Medical Center, University Hospitals of Cleveland, Cuyahoga Community College in Cleveland, Menorah Park Jewish Home for the Aged, Fairview General Hospital, Cleveland, and Bellefaire Center in Ohio.

She also has worked at the Cupertino Cooperative Nursery School, the Hill 'n Dale Pre-School, and with the League of Women Voters in the Valley.

PG&E wins rate boost

The Public Utilities Commission granted PG&E rate increases yesterday that will hike the average household gas and electric bill by nearly $2 a month.

The PUC also adopted a rate structure that would drastically increase the cost of home swimming pool heating.

New rate boosts will not effect lifeline rates, but will be applied to all usage over those levels.

Trustees view employe pact

Pleasanton Joint School District trustees will act on a tentative contract agreement with classified employes for the years 1976-78 at tonight's meeting.

The school board meets at 7:30 at the District Education Center.

Trustees are also scheduled to hear second reading of a policy on pupil behavior, accept a bid for the Fairlands School steam condensate system, hear a Harvest Park School report, accept the report of certification of vote (Trustees election), and comments from district residents Connie Stromer and Orley Philcox.

Blocked RR crossing

Faulty railroad crossing gates made Main Street in Pleasanton resemble downtown Los Angeles yesterday afternoon as motorists waited 11 minutes for the crossing gates to lift allowing passage.

After a three-engine caravan of railroad cars moved off the tracks adjacent to Amador High School about 1:30 p.m. yesterday, the crossing gates made several attempts to rise, but fell back under the warm sun.

The first brave pioneer to drive around the blocked crossing was swiftly nailed by a Pleasanton policeman, also awaiting his turn to drive on.

Traffic that had backed up more than a quarter-mile on each side was allowed to continue its course, when 11 minutes later, the gates that froze motorists' destiny successfully zoomed skyward.

Taxes rising but city 'good deal'

PLEASANTON — Local homeownwers can expect a 10 per cent increase in their taxes this year just by inflation working its effect on skyrocketing property values, Mayor Robert Philcox told the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Philcox's assertion was part of his "state of the city" message to the group.

The city staff estimates that the assessed valuation of the city will increase by 14 per cent in the coming fiscal year, with 10 per cent of it accounted by inflation and the housing market and the remaining 4 per cent from new construction.

"It means that if you have a $1,000 tax bill, it will go up to $1,100," said Philcox. "It means the city will get another $14 a year or a little more than $1 a month."

Local government's share is only 14 or 15 per cent of the total tax bill and that makes it tha best service bargain around, said Philcox.

"It handles planning, zoning, building inspector, street lights, storm drains, fire and police protection, park maintenance, trees, and recreation, all at an average cost of $10 to $15 a month. That's a real buy," said Philcox.

The tax rate can increase only 3 cents more, thanks to a lmit imposed by Senate Bill 90. He gave no indictation whether the staff will ask for any increase in the tax rate, but noted that department heads have kept tight revenues in mind and have not gone off the deep end in making new requests.

Philcox also had a few words about "special interest groups". Although the chamber has been a supportive special interest group, there have been some in the city which have been very critical, he said.

"They have attacked the city with lawsuits and referendums and they complicate things. Usually they just represent a minority," said Philcox. He didn't single out any particular organization, but the CARD Committee has been discussing referending the LAVWMA pipeline, which Philcox earlier in his talk said is integral to solving the city's longstanding sewer woes.

The amount of money the city has lost over the years because of lack of development would easily pay for a new Las Positas overcrossing, he said.

Still speaking on the topic of special interest groups, Philcox said he asks himself five questions when he makes a decision on the city council. They are: 1, is there an answer which will satisfy the entire community; 2, will it benefit the community as a whole; 3, is it harmful to others; 4, will it make Pleasanton a better place to live; and 5, am I willing to take the responsibility for my actions?

Fair talk

Directors deny parade backing

Though the State Fair Budget Committee has recommended allocation of $6,300 to the County Fair Association to cover an emergency repair, fair directors are sill dissatisfied with an attitude that "seemingly penalizes efficiency."

Fair directors met last night.

The local association had made a request to a state appeals board for an allocation ($6,300) to cover repairs to a well pump and legal fees ($12,000) incurred during last summer's county fair.

Picketing by county employes led to a cancellation of all horse racing and a drastic drop in fair attendance. The association hired counsel to try and get the pickets removed.

Director DeWitt Wilson said, "it appears when you operate a fairgrounds in an intelligent manner you are penalized." Wilson passed out figures showing the Pleasanton fair has consistently instituted capital improvements far beyond those of at least six other major fairs.

In other business, directors approved continuance of a no rock concert policy.

Pleasanton ponders garbage pickup hike

PLEASANTON — Perhaps the city ought to go into the garbage collection business — at least it wouldn't pay $53,000 each to two executives to run the business and the customers could save a few dollars on that alone each year, Council Member Frank Brandes said Monday night.

A city - run garbage business was just one of the ideas which came up during discussion of Pleasanton Garbage Service's rate increase request of 36 per cent, a decision which the council has delayed for two weeks in order to give closer scrutiny to the firm's books.

Brandes, who is a professional accountant for Sears, asked many technical questions of the garbage firm's accountant, Chuck Gielow. Some information was not available Monday night, but was promised to Brandes and the staff and other council members by the end of the week.

Brandes told The Times yesterday that some rate increase is justifiable, but he doubts it should be anywhere near the 36 per cent asked by the firm or the 31 per cent recommended by the staff.

At least a 9 per cent increase appears justifiable by wage increases for the rank and file union workers who drive the garbage trucks. Pleasanton Garbage Service attorney Bill Hirst said they make $20,000 annually.

And some increase is necessary to meet the costs of the new garbage transfer station erected by the firm, said Brandes. But granting a 36 per cent increase this year, after increases of more than 20 and 30 per cent in two other recent years, would mean an 80 per cent rise in just four years, said Brandes.

While inflation might account for some of that, there are other factors which can be sliced, he said. One place to pare is the salaries of the two owners; another is the return they get on their money.

Brandes thinks a return of 12 per cent on their money is too high. He doesn't have any figure to replace it, though. He'll know better when Gielow sends him more accounting sheets.

The other category is personal salary. A look at owner - operators' W-2 forms — the first public look every asked by a council member — showed that in 1976 the two owners each drew salaries of $53,000. In 1977 the estimate is for $29,000 each. The firm is losing money this year, owing to the transfer station costs and higher union wages, say the owners.

Several citizens protested the proposed increase and a couple suggested that the garbage collection contract go out to bid to find the cheapest service.

Valley obituary

Francis Hayden

Francis R. Hayden, a 26-year resident of Alameda County, died in Pleasanton April 7. He was 65.

A native of Colorado, he was a horse trainer for 40 years. He is survived by his wife, Marie Hayden of Pleasanton, two sisters, Mrs. John Silberberger of Carlsbad, Calif., and Mrs. Wilford Powers of Indianola, Iowa, and a brother, Dale Murphy of Arvada, Iowa.

Services will be held Thursday at 10:30 a.m. at Graham - Hitch Mortuary, 675 St. Johns St. in Pleasanton. Interment will follow Saturday at Dolsen Cemetery in Lamar, Colo.

Ileana Dominguez dances in a colorful Guatemalen costume while Lizbeth Reyna and Lupeta Cacacho watch near Livermore High School. They will be joined by other Guatemala students for a presentation Thursday.

Exchange students perform

LIVERMORE — The five exchange students from Livermore's Guatemalan sister city, Quezaltenango, will don their colorful native costumes to perform several native dances for the public 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The "Ballet Folklorico" of the Livermore - Quezaltenango Sister City Organization will be held in the East Room of the Recreation Center, 8th and H streets.

The students include Ileana Dominguez, Lizbeth Reyna, Lupeta Cacaho, Maria Elena Valenzuela and Haroldo Motta.

Prior to the dance performance, a short business meeting will be held. Coffee will be served. There is no admission fee and the public is invited.

Applications for Livermore students who want to study in Quezaltenango for a few months must submit an application by May 15 for the fall semester and by Sept. 15 for the Spring semester of 1978.

For more information, call Mrs. Valerie Long (447-7033) or Mrs. Patricia Lawson (443-3156).

Blueprint for rural SRV

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Ninety-nine percent of the San Ramon Valley General Plan has been tentatively approved by the Board of Supervisors, but won't reach formal adoption for another week.

The board said it was satisfied with all of the document except a provision calling for "county estate" zoning of a parcel of land on Stone Valley Road next to Interstate 680.

Whiie most of the residents of the area had asked for that zoning - a one-acre minimum lot size that allows the boarding of horses - one property owner had asked his parcel to be exempted so he could develop it later.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Pittsburg, asked for that request to be sent back to the Planning Department for further consideration.

Otherwise, the plan passed the board's scrutiny untouched.

An amendment to the county's general plan, the San Ramon plan was developed over a two-year period to emphasize the Valley residents' rural life while maintaining growth.

The plan calls for much of the San Ramon Valley to be used exclusively as agricultural land or open space ino order to presserve ridgelines in the area, a "cornerstone" of the plan according to planner Jim Cutler.

Need friendly support—ex-Moonie for $2 a meal at fast food places. The rest, except for modest housing, was pure profit for the church. The money, she said, wound up supporting Moon and his top aides.

Selling was easy; most people were happy to donate money to a "Christian cause". She started her day at 9 a.m. when the stores opened and ended at 2 a.m. when the bars closed. The reason some Moonies have a glassy - eyed look is not the so - called robot like brainwashing, but because they are tired, she said.

"I really didnt want to be there, but I thought I was supposed to sell that stuff. Any doubts were treated as the work of Satan," she said.

Despite Moon's claim that the Unification Church is Christian, that's a lie, said the woman. For starters, Moon claims to be the second coming of Christ. He appears to be in it for the money, she said.

Moon does well by earthly standards. He bought a mansion on Long Island where the Livermore woman and 200 other Moonies had a big audience with him. It was an impressive place, she reported.

Many people are hostile toward the Moonies, said the woman, who felt some of that anger when she was selling flowers. It's especially bad on the West Coast, where Moonies are told not to say they are from the Unification Church unless they are pressed.

Back East, though, the name is given in the solicitation and many people — at least in the days before Moon got so much publicity — assumed it was just another Christian denomination and were happy to give money.

Some have said that Moon is connected to the Korean CIA and has tried to influence Congress members. The local woman heard that too, but her only certainty is that Moon wants to take over the world, supposedly as the Messiah.

Despite her year - long discomfort and guilt as a Moonie, she couldn't make the break until she was in a parking lot in South Carolina. A friendly Christian couple offered her their home and she walked away with the Moonie candy boxes under her arm, taking care to send the church the money equivalent later.

She thinks that the famous "deprogrammers" who are supposed to counteract the alleged Moonie brainwashing really aren't necessary to bring people away from Moon's organization. All they need is friendly support from caring Christians, she thinks. If the atmosphere is neutral, with no pressure from either parents or Moon's people, the person can make up his or her own mind.

She is thinking about doing something along that line to help others who still are Moonies. She estimated that the group's membership is 2,000, a figure she called much lower than Moon's claim.

The woman's pastor, the Rev. Ronald Cunningham, was at our interview and offered a few comments of his own.

The Granada Baptist Church pastor has read part of "The Divine Principle", which Moon wrote, and thinks that the Unification Church attracts people to one set of values, then "gradually destroys the person built around that pretense". The move from a "creative community", a quasi - therapy group type of operation, to Moon as "the Messiah" is an example of what he means.

Rev. Cunningham noted that one recent Moonie - dropout is so helpless right now that he will have to learn how to make change for a dollar bill. Even the local woman was very tense when she first left the Moonies last year, though now she is much more relaxed. About the only thing that still amazes her now is that at one time she made $200 a day for Moon and now she is working at the minimum hourly wage for herself.

Another way to split park funds

LIVERMORE — City council Monday came up with its own "compromise" for division of the $4 million Alameda County will receive in state park funds approved by voters last November.

Council agreed with Livermore Heritage Guild member Janet Newton that five per cent of the funding should go to historical preservation projects. They voted unanimously to accept a list of projects, including $50,000 for renovation of the Duarte garage as an agricultural and transportation museum.

The Livermore officials generally agreed the rest of the money should be allotted to local jurisdictions on a per capita basis.

County supervisors have computed a formula which gives local jurisdictions 78 per cent of the funds, historical projects five per cent and the remaining 17 per cent to East Bay Regional Park District.

Calling the 79 per cent "better than nothing," Councilman Dale Turner voted against the non-compromising stand that 11 of 13 cities in the county appear to be taking.

Funding requirements call for approval of a formula by 50 per cent of the jurisdictions and application for specific projects by May 1. If there is no agreement, the funds would be held over to next year, when a general 10 per cent cut would be made in the total to be shared.

"The last time we had state funding, EBRPD got 25 per cent," noted City Manager Bill Parness, who called the regional park district "in a healthier financial condition than local jurisdictions."

"There is too much demand for local funding to give up the 17 per cent."

In other action, council:

— approved an appraisal of parking lot property next to the court house in anticipation of possible purchase or condemnation after the current lease expires in September. A lease extension was also discussed. The background of new planning director Howard Nies includes solving parking problems during his eight year tenure as head planner in Davis. He is expected to play a major role in solving Livermore's downtown parking problem.

— agreed the city will not treat the local residents to a July Fourth fireworks display this year because of hazardous drought conditions.

— denied a motion by Councilman John Staley to prohibit new home occupations permits while the planning commission is revising the city's policy for business in residences.

— received a new proposal for recycling in Livermore, prepared by Lois Hill of the recycling center.

— approved increased taxi rates to entice Blue and White Cab. Co. to start operations here. That company is expected to submit a taxi permit application this week, according to Ed Schilling, assistant to the city manager.

Fuzzy pipeline language

LIVERMORE — Unclear language in the sixth proposed revision of the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency's joint powers agreement prompted Livermore council Monday to question the document. Sections dealing with withdrawal from the organization, voting for capital improvements beyond the initial pipeline project and a "hold harmless" section sparked the debate.

Although the draft agreement affirms a 15.62 million gallon a day pipeline, council members expressed concern about protection afforded LAVWMA if one of its three member agencies did not meet state discharge standards.

If one member's effluent causes problems for the entire system, the document provides for the offending agency to indemnify the other two for "all direct or indirect damages."

"Who determines what these damages are," asked Councilman John Staley, who wanted protective language inserted in the joint powers agreement, "so claims are not automatically passed to us without some mechanism to weigh them."

Staley also asked for a "hold harmless clause, guaranteeing we will always have that 15.62 MGD." He expressed concern that East Bay Discharged Authority could have future problems with its "super sewer" in the East Bay and cause a cutback in service to the Valley.

City Manager Bill Parness assured council LAVWMA and EBDA officials are in final stages preparing a contract protecting against such a potential problem."

City Attorney Gary Reiners called the section on withdrawal "ambiguous" and urged its rewriting before Livermore becomes a signatory.

The obligation of debts incurred by LAVWMA was tied in with the withdrawal question.

"We can't commit unless we have the ability to guard against capital expenditures we don't approve of," said Mayor Helen Tirsell. She said LAVWMA representatives have decided if withdrawal from the organization is not permitted in the agreement, a unanimous decision should be required before spending for additional capital improvements.

Council also agreed any unused or additional capacity in the pipeline could only be purchased by the original parties to the agreement, expressing fear that Harlan Geldermann's proposed Newtown in Las Positas Valley would hook up to one of the existing agencies' sewer systems.

Councilman Marshall Kamena pointed out the worry over a Geldermann hookup was a moot point if any additional capacity is reserved only for industrial purposes.

The council adjourned its meeting, to be continued during LAVWMA's Thursday meeting.

Cartoons by young Wayne Stoner...

Laugh at the gallery

"I like to see people laughing," says Wayne Stoner, senior at Granada High and youngest exhibitor at the Livermore Art Association Gallery. He brought his imaginative, humorous cartoons down to the gallery because "otherwise they'll just sit in my bedroom where no one can enjoy them."

A hundred preliminary sketches gave birth to Wayne's two favorite characters — one a crow with an over-sized beak and goofy grin, the other a spindly-legged frog.

Wayne admits that his art is "just a fun indoor thing for me." He is a very active scuba diver who enjoys catching abalone for a feast with his friends. After that he digs boating, water skiing and "every sport you can name."

The young man got involved in the Livermore Art Association, and began volunteering his time regularly at the LAA Gallery in order to "pick up as much as I could from experienced artists." He has recently taken up watercolor painting, and purposely arranges his hours at the gallery to coincide with those of a local expert in that medium — "I learn alot from what I see here."

This Friday, the gallery at Livermore's Carnegie Building sponsors a demonstration of wool spinning on drop spindle and spinning wheel by Thale Struthers and Wilma Myers from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., free to the public.

Will tickle your fancy at the LAA Gallery.

New crafts for Ladybug

New items and craftspeople have been added to help make the sixth annual Ladybug Boutique even more scintillating for those looking for just the right Mother's Day gift.

Fifty artists and craftspersons will be on hand with their spring wares, ranging from metal sculpture to stone wallhangings, Wednesday, May 4 (noon to 9 p.m.) and Thursday, May 5 (10 a.m. to 5 p.m.) at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds Cafeteria.

The Ladybug Boutique is a group originating from the valley, with bi-annual juried shows open to the public.

The boutique will also feature sandwiches and snacks from La Trattoria Restaurant in Pleasanton.

Gilbert and Sullivan operetta set for May

The renowned Lamplighters of San Francisco will appear in a "Victorian Evening" of Gilbert and Sullivan selections Saturday, May 21 at Amador Valley High School auditorium.

The 8 p.m. performance will include a potpourri from the "Pirates of Penzance," a production the entire family should enjoy. A special feature of the evening will be the after theatre parties, hosted by St. Clare Episcopal Church members. Desserts and beverges of the 19th century will be served to adult and young people's groups.

Tickets are available at Sage Books and the Pleasanton recreation department. Checks for $5 may also be mailed to St. Clare's Episcopal Church, Box 296, Pleasanton, CA 94566. Tickets for students are $3.

LAA

Mexican-born artist Hector Gonzalez will conduct a screen printing workshop at tonight's meeting of the Livermore Art Association from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The public is welcome to the program at the Livermore Recreation Center.

Valley artists

Seascape artist Franklin Grant will be the guest speaker at the April 13 meeting for the Valley Artists at Frederickson School in Dublin.

The 7:30 p.m. program is open to the public and includes a demonstration by Grant who was a commercial artist for many years.

Boo! Hiss! What fun!

Singer Shawn Senden, a student at Harvest Park School in Pleasanton, will entertain during intermission when the San Ramon Conservatory Theatre opens April 15 with the production of "No Opera at the Op'ry House Tonight."

Shawn's Ragtime selections will include "Five Foot Two," and "Ain't She Sweet."

The old-fashioned melodrama will inspire cheers for the sparkling hero and boos for the villain when the curtain rises at 8:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Danville. Further performaces are planned April 16, 22, 23, 30, May 6 and 7.

Give artwork

Livermore artists Jean Hawley and Ruth Burden are will accept donations from Southern Alameda County for the annual KQED auction. Artists wishing to make a donation may obtain further information at 443-3388 or bring their work to The Way Up Gallery, 2222 Second St., Livermore, by April 17.

Top symphony

Conductor Maurice Abravenal and the Utah Symphony will perform at the Chabot College - Community Auditorium Thursday, April 21 at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the Pleasanton recreation department office. Critics claim that at Abravenal's baton 'the Utah Symphony matured to a disciplined, finely-tuned ensemble in the top rank of U.S. orchestras.'

"Miss Margarida's Way," billed as a tragi-comic monologue for an impetuous woman, is a double-edged allegory that pretends to "say" much more than the casual viewer might realize.

The American Conservatory Theatre production had its American premiere at the Marines Memorial Theatre in San Francisco last week. While it is flawed — the length of the play and the amount of swear words are much too much — the performance of Michael Learned (the mother in TV's epic The Waltons) is superlative.

Miss Learned plays a willful, tyrannical (and foul-mouthed) school teacher who lectures and berates her class — the audience.

Alternating brief, overt passages with soothing words of praise, Miss Margarida stalks about her "classroom," lecturing them on sex ("I know, you want Miss Margarida to take her dress off but you'll not get any sex education in this class"), the rewards of studying and paying attention ... to Miss Margarida.

The play, written by 27 - year - old Brazilian playwright Roberto Athayde, first opened four years ago in Rio de Janeiro but was immediately closed down by the censor. Later that year it reopened for a successful run and won the Moliere Prize for Best Play of the Year.

The passive role of the class-audience is played by Terry Dudley, an ACT student. He is seated in the audience (don't get seats fourth row center or he'll be stepping over you all night) and is badgered to the front of the class, where he is lectured to and/or struck by the fascist-symbol Miss Margarida.

Miss Learned is a veteran of ACT productions, having appeared in Tartuffe, Under Milkwood, The Misanthrope, The Rose Tatoo and Little Murders between 1968 and 1972.

She is also serving as honorary chairwoman of ACT's spring fund drive.

Auditions commenced Monday at the Dublin High Little Theatre for Valley Performing Arts Company's first-ever production, "Carnival," slated for June 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18.

Call backs, under director Dennis Kohles' watchful eye, will be held during the next week.

Anyone interested in supporting The Company via a membership, patron or benefactor donation, or assisting in some capacity back stage, should contact VPAC president Gil Maines in Pleasanton, Fred or Marie Cochran, Diana Kaher or Mel Chew in Livermore.

Stacy Martindale in Dublin is working with group ticket sales and lining up programs for clubs throughout the Valley. If your club would like a brief presentation on The Company, contact Stacy, myself, or any of the above-named VPAC board members.

Is Mitzi Gaynor as bubbling and bright as she looks on TV and in ad pictures?

Yes, a thousand times YES!

After seeing her show ringside at Harrah's Tahoe a week ago Saturday, we have nothing but respect and a big "show biz" bouquet for this tireless performer.

Mitzi is magnificent!

Folk music

The Wild Rye bluegrass band will entertain the Livermore Folk Music Club Thursday, April 14 at the Unitarian Fellowship House, 4260 First St., Livermore.

The public is welcome to the 7:30 p.m. program featuring Bruce Strand, John Wagner, Greg and Gary Clark and Hall Short. For information call 443-2648 or 443-5217.

The Wild Rye will also appear at the April 22 folk music concert at Livermore High School to benefit Twin Valley Counseling Services.

County, city

Local government has to get its act together if it is to survive as a meaningful representative of the people.

That is the message an editor gets from a brisk hour's exchange with Supervisor Valerie Raymond. It is always brisk when you rap with Valerie, but the time is never wasted.

We talked about getting gravel truck traffic off of local streets (she's really working on that one) and we talked about "each community's priority for major projects ... there are far too many projects for the dollars available."

There was a moment to touch on COVA, and for Supervisor Raymond to argue that "we need a Congress of Valley Agencies or some sort of forum to permit local governments to communicate, to share ideas, to work together toward common goals."

It was the enthusiasm with which that county representative hammered for "a forum of local governments" which got us to talking about a whole range of problems, and the realities of survival, in the bureaucratic scheme of things.

"It is as though state government has no respect for city and county government ... does not think we can do an effective job ... would almost prefer that we disband and hand over everything to Sacramento. Unfortunately," Supervisor Raymond concluded, "local government goofs things up just often enough to support the state's argument."

Except of course that the people have no assurance state government would be any more "effective" if it ran everything from street sweeping to safety services to county jails. We have evidence that the bigger government gets, the more costly and the less representative government becomes.

Some similar thoughts were expressed by Bill Fraley, Planning Director for Alameda County, in a recent conversation. Fraley was responding to editorial comments we had offered on the subject of "down zoning" ... specifically the state legislators' threat to force local government to "compensate" developers and investors for losses incurred by a zoning change.

"If local government has to share in the investors' losses, then we should also share in the investors' profits when the land is enhanced by the community's total improvement," Fraley argues. We agree.

But will the state legislators agree? As Supervisor Raymond notes, "state people tend to judge us by our mistakes, not our successes." All the more reason to "get our local act together."

Horses vs. people

There was that time when horses were the bedrock of the local economy. We grew the hay which fed thousands of steeds throughout the west, storing that product in great barns which lined the railroad rights of way in Pleasanton and Livermore before exporting that product to distant markets.

Our ranchers ranged along the ridges and the foothills from Sunol to Altamont, using hundreds of ponies to gather in thousands of head of beef and dairy cattle.

A different breed of horse found challenge and profit for those owners who have used the racing oval in Pleasanton for well over 100 years ... from the days of the Spanish conquistador to today's multi - million dollar midsummer race meet. And it was because of the popularity of that track, and the gathering here of horse owners and hay buyers from distant places, that hotels flourished in Pleasanton and Livermore even before there was one city in this basin.

All of which is brought to mind with a report from the American Quarter Horse Association which advises us ownership of horses is thriving again as never before. Now however it is recreation, not racing nor ranching, which gives new impetus to equestrian pursuits.

Of 3.2 million horse owners in these nited States, 80 percent of them list recreation as their primary interest. In the 4-H movement, 320,000 members are active in horse projects, a ten-fold increase in 15 years.

We are also advised that "34 percent of those owners live in a city or suburban area." That suggests a challenge which city and county planners can no longer ignore. There must be provision for riding trails, proper access to public and even semi-private "open space" and a more intelligent separation of vehicular and equestrian traffic.

The horse, it would appear, is with us to stay. We need urban and more particularly suburban planning to make certain horseback riding is sustained as a pleasure, and not allowed to become a public nuisance or a threat to others' safety.

St. Vincent's big week

It's one week before St. Vincent de Paul Society launches its annual "spring drive for good useable articles." But we offer you this advance notice so that you might start accumulating that unwanted furniture, the bike no longer needed, the dishes that have become surplus.

The people at St. Vincent's will "take anything" ... just so long as it can be converted by eager hands into something of worth to someone else. The Society is among the nation's first, and most durable, "recycling centers."

There are many such charities, all perhaps worthy of your response. St. Vincent de Paul happens to be one that operates right within this Valley, including a store in downtown Pleasanton that caters to low - income families from these several communities.

Trucks from St. Vincent de Paul will start marking their rounds Monday, April 18. You may arrange for a collection stop at your house by calling 846-6300.

Hindsight/Foresight

Strike reaction?

At this time, a walkout by 200 or more teachers in the Amador Valley Joint High School District, and a possible honoring of picket lines by a similar number of classified employees, is a distinct possibility.

If a strike occurs, it will be the first such action by a large body of educators in the Valley's history.

But it will not be the first walkout by a body of teachers anywhere in the state since the advent of collective bargaining more than a year ago.

Latest group to threaten strike and (apparently) carry it out is the 2,300-strong San Juan Unified School District teachers unit. San Juan is a K-12 district in and around Sacramento, totaling 77 schools and serving 49,000 pupils. It is the seventh largest district in the state.

The rhetoric by both sides in the San Juan district has been much the same evidenced in the Amador district. Only the "numbers" are different.

Several weeks ago this newspaper ran a Page 1 editorial urging that teachers NOT strike and that further face-to-face efforts be made to reach accord.

Some across-the-table sessions have been held since the and movement on the crucial issues has been made by teacher and administration negotiators — though some would say it is barely discernible.

Our feelings have been made known, then, on the subject of contracts and strikes as they pertain to the Amador district.

We will go one step further now and suggest that for Amador teachers to strike now, next week or next month would prove a damaging act.

Not to the kids so much or the administration, but to the teachers themselves.

For they stand to lose a large portion of the ever-dwindling confidence in them—confidence that parents have in teachers to do the proper thing.

In the last couple of months we have detected a growing hostility (on the part of parents) to the position of teachers.

It would seem that for teachers to walkout before the collective bargaining process is completed (with a fact-finding hearing) would not be playing by the rules.

There is some possibility that the ultimate solution will be to go through with the fact-finding (though the Amador teachers unit was quite reluctant to enter the process in the light of Pleasanton's experience), and abide by the report emanating from such a hearing.

This may be considered simplistic but it seems like the only course.

The prospective final action, then, would be similar to that Thursday night meeting of a few weeks ago at Pleasanton's Harvest Park School.

I know the teachers would not approve of such a finale, but it would be far more acceptable to them than the reaction they would get if they attempted a walkout.

Letters to the Times

School arbitrator

Editor, The Times:

Regarding the planned strike April 14th of the Amador Valley High School Teachers, I would like to recommend the teachers read an article in the April issue of Readers's Digest entitled "Can Public Employee Unions be Controlled?" The article states that Community College Instructors in Alaska forced contract negotiatioms into binding arbitration. An outside arbitrator dictated a pay package at least $ 1 Million more than officials believed the state could afford then he took the next plane to New York. This is taxation without representation... the decisions on spending are taken from the people's representatives.

I vehemently object to an outside arbitrator making decisions that could affect us financially. The fact that the teachers have planned a strike to get full binding arbitration indicates that they could care less what happens to this community. This has already been proven by their using the students to fight their cause for them (see letter to the Editor, The Times signed by parents in Dublin). It seems the teachers don't care who gets hurt as long as their demands are met.

I think it's about time this community starts speaking out to voice their opposition to such dangerous demands.

Recall recalled

Editor, The Times:

In the "heat of battle", shall I say, I may have not made myself clear as to those who, by law, may instigate a Re-call petition. This matter of re-call by the Committee For Conservation, has been blown all out of proportion, and the following should go a long way to clear some misconceptions.

The state elections code, division 16. recall in sum states that the proponents of recall must be registered voters of the jurisdiction involved! This means that only Dublin registered voters may bring recall charges, pass, and sign the petitions in Dublin. Exactly the same restrictions prevail in Livermore and Pleasanton.

This misconstruction may have come about at the last LAVWMA meeting at Shannon Community Center. I did state that The Committee For Conservation "will make every effort to recall all three (civic) bodies in the Livermore Amador valley". This is true since, at that time we had, and still have, support in the three areas. They had allowed me to speak for them. Their money and efforts, as well as the naming and the charges brought against each individual, is required by State Statute, to be determined by regisered voters of each area involved.

I do hope the above brings some clarification, and I ask again for your support. Thank You.

Paul Tull

Trustees thanked

Editor, The Times:

We want to say thank you to the Trustees of the Amador Valley High School and the Pleasanton Elementary School Boards.

To those Trustees who have completed their terms and won't be returning-thank you. We have appreciated your concern for quality education and the gift of many hours of your times as you have faithfully gone about the demanding and oft times thankless job of representing us.

To those newly elected Trustees and those continuing members-thank you. You recieve no pay, your hours are long, the work often frustrating and stressful, but hopefully it is also challenging and satisfying.

We are thankful for a system in which each of us as citizens can have input into matters which have impact on the educational environment of our community. Thanks again for serving as our elected representatives. We appreciate you.

Energy wasted

Editor, The Times:

The LAVWMA Board finds itself in an untenable situation for the second time in six months, once for submitting a bond issue to the voters for a pipe line whose cost had been underestimated by about ten million dollars and now for having prematurely committed itself to the same pipe line without a vote of the people at the time that congress has extended the grant period for one year to Sept. 1978.

In anyone including the editor of the Times thinks the sewer issue is to go away because LAVWMA finally made the big wrong decision, he'd better think again. The smell of the real sewer issue hasn't hit the fan yet. It may take a year or more for cost overrides and still unpublished costs to make valley taxpayers realize how badly they have been used. Valley pipe line promoters had best do some solemn praying for rain ...

The waste we are told we must pay to have dumped into the bay and buried in the hills, is just that much more energy gone to waste. ... When Americans get ready to take the enrgy shortage seriously and look into the back yard rather than to Washington for answers, progress can begin and not much sooner. ...

... A valley-wide organization is forming to provide leadership but what are you who have to gain or lose by all this, willing to contribute in time or money to help turn this pipe line back onto the parched lands of the Valley?

John B. Fraga

Council audacity

Editor, The Times:

The registered voter of Livermore runs this city. — The audacity of the city council to vote for a sewer line that we rejected —are we inept — moronic — imbecils to be told what is good or bad for us?

That registered voter can assure a responsive city council by signing the recall petition.

round the town

"Washington calling," I am advised bright and early of a Monday morning. "The White House on line two."

Is it collect, I ask? One grows tired of this new Carter frugality, after a while.

Turns out it is not frugality but rather honesty which is troubling the Carter forces this Monday morn.

"Hi there Joe," says a bright male voice on the other end. "This is Carl Candor calling ... the president's Special Advisor on Telling It Like It Really Is. We have a little matter we'd like to share with you this morning, Joe."

The name is not Joe, I advise him, but he takes little notice.

"You're aware of course, Joe, that Jimmy (we're all on a first - name basis these days) is very strong on candor ... giving the American people straight talk and that sort of thing."

I acknowledge that I have been reading a great deal about the Carter candor in recent days, and not just from Jim-boy's side of the clan.

"Well, heh heh," Carl Candor says, heh - hehing, "that's one of the reasons I'm calling you this morning, Joe. In fact we're calling all the Bay Area press ... anybody who might have readers who follow the Oakland A's games ... or even the night - before socials."

So, Jimmy has gotten wind of brother Billy's six - pack "racial joke," is that it?

"Well, it wasn't really a racial joke, Joe, so much as it was one of those little asides we southern boys have grown accustomed to over the years. But apparently you western media boys don't respond quite the same way."

I was going to ask Carl - boy just what kind of response he had in mind, but he was quickly off on another tack.

"Jimmy doesn't want any of you - all to get the idea that he's trying to put the clamps on brother Bill ... and I want to repeat that. And he did. Both times he called me "Joe." I put my hand over the phone and asked the girls in the office if they were certain this call was not collect.

"Telling - it - like - it - really - is has always been a big item with Jimmy Carter," Carl Candor reminded me. "I wouldn't even be on Jimmy's staff and wouldn't be calling you this morning, heh heh, if it weren't for Jimmy's hangup on straight talk." I was weighing the virtue of never having received this call against the loss of Carter straight - talk when Carl Candor pressed on.

"You will recall how we sent our arms negotiator to Moscow and didn't back down one inch on the Carter 'Hu an Rights Declaration' even though it might result in the Ruskies blowing hell out of us," Carl said, courageously. "And we told Castro the Carter administration would let our agreement on airplane hijackers run out — regardless of the threat to hundreds of American lives — before we would knock off our straight - talk on Cuba's interference in Africa, not to mention its lousy officiating of bilateral basketball games."

Again, I commended Carl Candor for the straight talk which flows from the mouths of Carter people but getting back to brother Billy ...

"And then you take Prime Minister Trudeau," Carl interrupted. "He came into this country to bring his message of Canadian peace, the world brotherhood of man and that sort of thing, but by golly we laid it right on the line for old Pierre: 'Talk to us about gas and about Margaret!' we insisted. You will notice that an official statement came out of Ottawa the very next day clarifying the status of Prime Minister and Ms. Trudeau."

Yes, yes, I agreed, you Carter people have been doing a great job in telling other countries how to run their internal affairs, what to do with their oppressed people and their depressed wives, but then why can't President Carter get his brother in line before Billy gives off with these stupid six - pack comments??

"I was getting around to that," Carl Candor said. "I want to assure you press people that Billy Carter was not talking as a Carter when he made that remark. He was in fact brain washed by two well known Hams ... one that comes in the can, and the other masquerading as the owner of a major league baseball team."

Now just a tab - pulling minute, I said. Is the president trying to tell the American people that Billy Carter was under some evil influence when he got trapped into making that stupid racial remark at the Oakland A's pre-game social?

"That's it," Carl Candor said, candidly, "and furthermore, we have proof that the whole thing was put together by Charlie Finley (acting as the agent for Cuban baseball interests) just to get Billy to make a jackass of himself. It seems that Charlie lost his own mule a while back and then he got this idea to invite Billy and ..."

Changing

Buddy can you spare a dime?

There's one you don't hear anymore because panhandlers won't work the streets for less than a buck a handout. They read the financial pages, understand double digit inflation.

They're also sensitive to a dying breed in the coin realm — spare change. To be exact -- exact change. Nobody's got it. You charge em 43 cents they give you 50. If the bill's $1.98 they pull out a 10.

Those jingling, sparkling pocketfuls of change that used to clang a thousand minature cymbals and be good for gum purchases are no more.

You might call it the vanishing specie.

Things are so bad in Rome that shopkeepers pay off in penny candy. In Paris, maids scoop coins right of your room. Here at home we just pull out another wad of bills from the wallet while a frazzled proprietor offers two dollars on the dollar for exchange in silver.

Coins are out.

The age of plastic money is here. No more old times when you chomped down to determine if the payoff was gold, silver, or zinc alloy.

George Washington would have to throw Master Charge across the Potomac today.

Exact change has become a rare art form. Only a handful of practitioners are left. They are people of foresight, purchasers with a sense of tradition and no little amount of naivete.

You've got to be Pollyana to stuff 17 cents in a coin holder and expect to make a buy. A parking meter would register tilt at anything less than two bits.

Still, those who remember when cash had weight, as well as worth, are careful to leave home with a variety of coinage.

A wide sampling from the mint is recommended. Quarters, despite our silver shortage, are plentiful, so any change-groupie will be stocked with at least two a day.

Dimes are nice, light and usually shinier than their brethren, but not crucial. Carry them when possible. Don't go to the bank and purchase rolls, however.

Nickels and pennies are the backbone of any good coin collection. With one five cent piece and four pennies at all times, an exact change devotee needen't feel poor.

If the bill is seven cents (highly unlikely if you've been reading this far) the purchaser has it in precise amount.

If lunch costs $3.78, the diner may present four singles plus the nickel and three pennies. Change in return will be a quarter and a nickel. In the transaction, the diner has surrended four coins and received two in return.

This is the essence of exact change — to constantly whittle away at the supply, leave more in the marketplace than in the slacks pocket.

Sublime shopping is a $2.44 pork chop purchased with two dollar bills, three dimes, two nickels and the omni-present four cent pieces.

The shopkeeper is happy because he's armed for the moron who can't break anything less than a C-note. Your pants will look better because the pocket drag is relieved. Co-workers will be grateful when you have nothing left to jingle during office hours.

Exact change is a tipoff to character. The shopper with it is probably, organized, considerate, able to plan ahead and asses the future, aware of the needs of others.

Either that or he's too broke to carry anything bigger.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My mother's freaking out in her middle years. She's suddenly into hypnosis trying to kick bad habits she's had for years, such as smoking, drinking and eating too much. She's put on a lot of weight and is determined to lose it. Now, my stepfather tells me he'd pay the bills if I'd see her hypnotist so I can get over my fear of dogs. I always thought hypnotists belonged on a stage and didn't have anything to do with medicine but my mother and stepfather swear this man's a doctor. — C.R.

DEAR C.R.: Unfortunately, your bias against hypnosis is shared by many Americans who think of a hypnotist as an exotically dressed man or woman on a stage, dangling a watch in front of someone's face. The hypnotist doesn't need to use a revolving wheel, a shimmering gold pocket watch, or any gadget to induce a trance - like state in a subject.

The hypnotized person is in a state of intense, aroused concentration. The human mind which is about one - ninth conscious and about eight - ninths unconscious is extremely suggestible and becomes more so under hypnosis. There should be nothing especially frightening or mystical about it, however, for no one can be hypnotized if he doesn't want to be. Inhibitions can be freed under hypnosis, but the hypnotist cannot create something in his subject that didn't exist before.

If I were you I would certainly accept your stepfather's offer. Hypnosis can be very helpful and many people have overcome fears, stopped smoking and nail - biting. It can even help to lower blood pressure. It has been less successful in weight loss.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm marrying a man 13 years my senior. The age difference doesn't seem to worry my parents or my friends, but they are concernd because I'll be his fourth wife. I've never been married before. I guess I haven't wanted to think too much about why his other marriages haven't made it. I just know that he loves me and I love him. That, I believe, is the most important thing. Do you think it would put him off if I asked him about his other marriages? He's never discussed them and I considered that to be in good taste. — D.G.

DEAR D.G.: Whether he's "put off" or not, I suggest you definitely ask him whatever questions you can think of about his former marriages. It's vital for him, and for you, to know why these marriages failed. It's possible the questions may prove as illuminating to him as to you.

Some individuals can't remain committed to a relationship. Once the honeymoon wears off, they're ready to move on to the next honeymoon and are unwilling to mature and grow. They have unrealistic expectations and create an image of perfection. When they realize the person they married can't live up to that image, they want out.

Don't be embarrassed to ask questions about his other wives. If you can, do a little checking to find out what others thought of his former wives. You may get a more rounded view that will help protect your marriage, or that may prevent you from making the mistake of marrying this man.

Don't neglect in those heart - to - heart chats to discuss money and alimony. It's far better to investigate these areas of potential trouble now, rather than leaving it until after the wedding.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — We just learned that my husband has lead poisoning. What is the prognosis and treatment for this disease?

At first it was thought to be gout. There was pain in the wrist and ankles. Then pain in the shoulder started and the doctor suspected bursitis. Next rheumatoid arthritis was suspected but a blood test was negative.

The pain kept getting worse and involving more parts of the body, shoulders, wrist, hands, fingers, elbows, knees and lower back. A general feeling of no strength, being tired all the time, gray gums accompanied by a weight loss.

Finally another blood test and urine analysis led to the present diagnosis.

Perhaps you can alert people that it is very possible for adults to get lead poisoning from occupation or whatever.

DEAR READER — Opportunities for lead poisoning are rather widespread in our modern society. Most of the news items have emphasized the lead poisoning that occurs in children from picking off bits of old lead-based paints.

Lead can be absorbed from fumes in the air, through the skin or swalloed. Lead is used commercially in many industries. Most industries that use lead have a safety routine that helps prevent lead poisoning. A heavy emphasis is placed on washing and changing clothes after exposure, before eating or before going home. Smelting, printing, parts of the petroleum industry, mining, storage battery manufacture, ceramic and glass work and plumbing are all examples of some of the industries using lead.

Lead can affect the digestive system causing severe abdominal pain from cramps of the digestive system. The pain may resemble an acute surgical condition but the pain is usually not made worse by pressing on the abdomen. The pressure may even give some relief.

Anemia may occur. The nervous system may be involved and can cause convulsions, paralysis and nerve damage.

Involvement of the muscles causing the kind of pain your husband experiences does occur. Interference with the normal elimination of uric acid by the kidneys may cause high uric acid levels and a condition we call "saturnine gout" so I am not surprised your doctor entertained a diagnosis of gout.

The gray or bluish line you noted on the gums is from a deposition of lead sulfide and we call this a lead line.

The diagnosis is made by laboratory studies identifying the increased amounts of lead and lead elimination in the urine.

Involvement of the brain is an emergency, otherwise the treatment is gradual and usually highly successful.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES THE GUITAR MAKE ITS SOUND?"

KATE DeMENNA
PRESCOTT, AZ

A. WHEN YOU PLUCK A GUITAR, THE VIBRATING STRINGS AND THE HOLLOW BODY MAKE THE MUSICAL SOUND

DICK Rogers

The guitar is one of the most popular stringed musical instruments. When you strum a guitar its strings vibrate very rapidly.

As the strings vibrate, they push the surrounding air outward in the form of sound waves that you can hear.

The hollow body (sound box) gives the instrument its special sound, or tone quality.

A guitar has six strings, played by the fingers of the right hand. Each string gives off a certain note when it is plucked.

Crossing the fingerboard at regular intervals are littie metal ridges called frets. As you pluck a guitar, you use the fingers of the other hand to press the strings against the frets.

This shortens the part of the string that is free to vibrate. The shorter the string, the higher the note.

Electric guitars produce louder and clearer tones. A small microphone under the strings picks up the sound, which is sent through a loudspeaker.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's possible you could create some problems today, either through wishful thinking or impracticality. Keep that sharp logic working.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you want to stay in the black, you must fight your extravagant tendencies. It's difficult for you to grasp the value of money today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Rather than use your splendid intellect, you'll rely on fortune and circumstance to bring you through today. They won't suffice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be modest today, even though there's something you're bursting to boast about. Applause will be more sincere if someone else speaks out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's unwise today for either you or your mate to splurge. Analyze everything before you buy to see if you can get along without it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let others make the decisions today. Even though they're eager to help, it's probable they'll gum things up for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful in your work today not to become so obsessed with detail that you overlook objectives. Try to see the big picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't bank on another's lavish promises today. You may never receive the gift or service he has glibly mentioned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you want something done right away, take care of it yourself. When the control leaves your hands, so do your chances for success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) To hustle briskly today, you shouldn't lay it on too heavy. They'll be disappointed if you're not sincere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Stay out of stores with desirable merchandise and high price tags today. Your whims will get the better of your budget.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You tend today to be complacent and to treat serious matters a little too lightly. This is NOT a wise course!

Here is another example of the value of thought at trick one. South didn't bother to do his thinking. He dropped his four of hearts under East's ace. East continued the suit. South played his 10.

West won with the queen and cleared the suit.

South entered dummy with the king of spades and won a club finesse. Then he laid down his ace of clubs since there was no way to get back to dummy for a second finesse. The king failed to drop and another notrump game had wound up one trick short.

Let's see what some real thought at trick one would have been.

The first thought would be that West surely would hold the queen of hearts. Hence, South was only going to get one heart trick.

The second thought would be that four club tricks would be needed for game and that it would be nice to be able to lead twice from dummy just in case East held exactly three clubs to the king.

After this thought, South would drop his king of hearts, not the four spot. Dummy's jack would be a sure entry and South would have his four club tricks.

Many educators seek 'return to basic'

LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

"Back to the basics."

The phrase has become the rallying cry for a growing number of educators, but there is disagreement as to what the words really mean and how children should be taught.

The cries for a return to traditional subjects and teaching methods started in the late 1960s, partly as a reaction to the open-classrooms and free-style learning patterns in many areas of the country.

Lower test scores, declining enrollments and rising costs led Americans to look at the quality of education and ask whether they were getting their money's worth. Employers expressed concern over job applicants who could not understand a personnel form or solve simple business problems.

"We believe the schools can do a better job than they're doing now," said George Weber, associate director of the Council for Basic Education. "It's a matter of zeroing in on the problem. It's a long-overdue decision that some skills are more important than others."

The council, based in Washington, D.C., is a non-profit organization founded in 1956 and dedicated to "strengthening of the basic subjects in American schools."

According to the council, strengthening the basics means making sure that all students receive adequate instruction in English (including reading and writing), math, science, history, foreign languages and the arts; that clear standards of achievement are used for promotion; and that "school administrators are encouraged and supported in resisting pressures to make the school assume miscellaneous responsibilities for the social or 'life-adjustment' functions of their students."

Other educators are less certain about defining the basics. "I'd like to think that the purpose of school is substantially broader than teaching reading," said Arthur Wise of the Educational Policy Research Group in Washington.

"In elementary school you should teach reading and arithmetic, of course, but you also should stimulate children to think about the world around them, stimulate their interest in a wide variety of things, provide moral training," Wise added.

He said the schools already do a good job for the vast majority of students, but more research is needed to determine how to reach those who are not now able to learn.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress, which surveys students' achievements, asked experts to review the findings of reading, writing and arithmetic tests and determine what was needed for improvement. W. Ross Winsterowd, a professor of English at the University of Southern California, said he agreed that there was a need "to get back to the basics, but it is absolutely essential that we first identify the basics we want to get back to."

He added: "We don't need to get back to the 'basics' of spelling, punctuation and verb agreement as such. What worries me ... is the strong evidence that coherence and the ability to develop ideas is perhaps evaporating ..."

A panel from the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics agreed. They warned against trying to build up students' abilities to deal with numbers by simply putting more stress on simple computations. Instead they urged a sharper focus on practical items such as consumer problems.

Dr. Curtis Pipho, associate director of the department of research and information of the Education Commission of the States in Denver noted that a growing number of school systems are requiring students to pass basic tests before graduating from high school. "What we're really calling for," said Pipho, "is complete revision ... of the (teaching) programs themselves."

Larry Frase of the National Institute of Education, the research arm of the U.S. Office of Education, said that there are fundamental changes taking place in many schools, but he said there was no long-term evaluation available to determine which programs have been successful.

In general, he said, there has been "a reorientation of the academic community toward comprehension."

Richard Anderson of the Center for Studies in Reading at the University of Illinois noted that there has been some improvement in the reading abilities of young children and attributed it to better materials and reaching methods.

"We've learned that programs that give the child more productive exposure to reading activities pay off," he said. The more time a child spends on reading, the better he is able to read, providing that the material can attract and maintain his attention, said Anderson.

"Most kids come to school wanting to learn to read," he added. The problem is to encourage and continue that desire. In the past, he noted, children had to read if they wanted to learn about new worlds, adventures and entertainments. "Now you can get that ... from television. One of the motivating forces is gone," Anderson said.

There are two basic methods of teaching reading: phonics and look-say. Phonics involves sounding out words, letter by letter. The look-say methods relies on teaching a child to recognize the whole word.

Supporters of the phonics method say that once the youngster learns the basic sounds, he or she can read almost any word; supporters of the look-say method claim that children understand more if they learn the word as a whole unit.

The look-say method gained popularity prior to World War II. It came under attack in 1955, with the publication of "Why Johnny Can't Read," by Rudolf Flesch. Now, says Anderson, "The wars of look-say versus phonics have moderated ... Virtually every reading program gives a considerable emphasis to phonics."

Despite the general agreement on the need for at least some phonics training, Weber, of the Council for Basic Education, said that only 20 or 25 per cent of the students now learn by the phonics approach.

One problem, he said, is the lack of teaching materials. It takes time to produce new textbooks and guidelines. "It will take 10 to 30 years to switch to the new system completely," he said.

The same problem is true with mathematics, he said.

Schools recognized some time ago that there had been a decline in computational skills, but the first new textbook on basic math was not available until 1975.

There is growing pressure for improved education. In 1972, the parents of a San Francisco high school graduate sued the school district, contending that their son could not read and therefore could not get a job. The parents claimed the school district was negligent.

The plaintiffs ultimately lost their case, but a similar suit has now been filed in New York State. An 18-year-old Long Island youth and his family are suing a local school board for $5 million, contending that the school system from which he has graduated in 1976 failed to educate him properly and left him "unable to cope ... with the affairs of the world."

San Ramon rally stuns Mats

Ripping the cover off the ball after barely touching it for six innings, San Ramon scored four runs in the seventh inning to shock Granada, 4-3, yesterday in East Bay Athletic League baseball play in Livermore.

It was a day for the bottom half of the lineup, and a day that saw one streak continued and another streak bluntly halted.

The Wolves remained unbeaten, at 4-0, in EBAL play while the Mats lost a chance to move ahead of the Danville crew and slipped to 3-2.

However, the biggest shock was the outburst from nowhere by the bottom half of the SR lineup against Granada's immensely effective hard - throwing righthander Bob Parness, who had two shutouts and a no-hitter to his credit coming into the contest.

The four runs he gave up to the Wolves, all before even getting a man out, were the first runs, earned or unearned, he has surrendered this season.

And San Ramon's Eric Austed, who relieved Mitch Rascano in the third inning, pitched five innings of one-hit baseball, that hit coming in the seventh inning on a leadoff hit by Mark Davis.

Parness entered the seventh sailing along on a strong two-hitter, including ten strikeouts in six innings. But when leadoff hitter John Arnaudon bounced one over third base the Wolves began their incredible comeback.

Tim Rosgen followed with a routine grounder to third, but Granada third baseman Steve Cox fumbled the ball trying to get it out of his mitt, and both runners were safe.

Charlie Brice then whacked a Parness offering through the hole into left field for a base hit, scoring Arnaudon.

The alert Parness, covering home on the play, truned and fired to first to try and pick off Meese, but Davis couldn't find Meese's body upon getting the throw, the SR runner sliding under the tag.

Paul Fisch then came up with the inning's biggest hit, a solid single to center field that scored Brice easily. Jaryl Hudson, the Granada centerfielder, threw over the backstop in a belated attempt to catch Brice at the plate, and Meese came home with the winning run as a consequence.

After Davis' leadoff single in the seventh inning for Granada, Austed settled down and managed to get the meat of the Granada lineup to end the contest.

Vance Rushing, the EBAL's leading hitter coming into the game, let the count get to 3-1, but Austed fed him a slow fastball that Rushing popped out to first base for the first out. Tim Shatswell forced pinch - runner Jack Haller at second on a bouncer to third, while Steve Stoddard flied out sharply to left to end the

Deer competition comes to end

In the Bag

The last Running Deer Competition of the season will be held April 17 at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club. On the same date there will be an Iron Chicken Shoot going on, the Off Hand Rifle, and plenty of pistol targets, too, both big and small bore. So bring plenty of ammo, and your shooting buddies. Hope to see you out there!

May 1 is the date of the 31st Annual Barbeque at the local rod and gun club — keep that day for a fun day you won't want to miss! It's a family day and BBQ tickets are still just $5, and children under 12 just $1.50.

All kinds of special entertainment is planned for the day in addition to a long list of special skills competition: the Iron Chicken; ham, bacon and linguisa shoots; skeet and trap ranges; running deer and off hand rifle ranges. More on this later.

John Lietzke, chairman of the Hunter Safety Course at the local rod and gun club, reports a new class of graduates, as follows:

Bob Bishop, Stan Bishop, Tom Bond, Craig Braida, Rudy Braids, Jim Buranis, Mike Buranis.

Jim Causey, Bob Chapman, Maryann Chapman, Rob Costa, Mike Crawberg, Dan Deis, Tammy Deis, Tim Deis, Tom Deis.

Marilee Hord, Billy Hulp, Betty King, Doug McCallister, John Meier, Jane Merrigan, Dave Miguel.

Mark Nugen, Jeff Prickett, Frank Roeske, Pat Rashe, David Short, John Slichter, Bill Smith, Mike Toledo, Teri Toledo, and John Wood.

If you wish to get in a class this spring, sign up at Arnew's Custom Saddlery, 153 North L St., Livermore, or Dom's Surplus at 56 South Livermore Ave., Livermore.

There will be one or more classes given in this series; however, John says the last class will start May 31. So, don't be cut off just when you need to qualify for a hunting license.

Ron Hill reports the wind was so bad last weekend up at Frank's Tract that the whitecaps were over three feet high right in the harbor. "So I just turned around, got in the old buggy and came home," said Ron, "And next week I'm going to try Del Valle!"

Bill Amerman and his fishing buddy, Neil Lund, figured that after the rain stopped Friday evening would be a good time to hit the Clifton Court Forebay for some striper fishing.

After getting all their gear together, Neil's wife said to Bill, "Be sure and watch Neil, as he has a habit of falling in the water."

Things were going well and Neil hooked a pretty good fish — and sure enough, during the struggle Neil managed to fall in. But he did get that striper up on the bank.

They built a fire to dry out, and unfortunately Neil's pants leg got slightly burned. Bill said, "I sure felt sorry for him, and showed it by having a good laugh."

Anyway, Neil proudly came home with a nice striper, so maybe he had the last laugh. Both say they're going back soon to try their luck.

Keith M. Gaffaney, California Wildlife Federation Legislative Advocate, gave a report on a new salmon run recently. He said the construction of the New Hogan Reservoir on the Calaveras River has resulted in establishing a winter run of salmon which had not existed previously.

Because of its being a new run following the completion of the reservoir, no fish passage facilities had been requested as none was required at the time of the construction of the project.

The Fish and Game Commission, at its January meeting, approved an expenditure (approximately $25,000) by the Department of Fish and Game to construct fishways to accommodate the salmon run. The last run was between 500 and 700 fish valued by the DFG between $9,000 and $15,000.

Foothill wins pitchers' battle

Three crucial errors proved to be the key as Foothill High School's baseball team won its first East Bay Athletic League game of the season by edging host Amador Valley, 1-0 yesterday in Pleasanton.

The fans were treated to a brillant performance performance by both Rob Wicks of Amador Valley and Foothill's Rick Rosenbach. Wicks didn't walk a batter and allowed but two hits while fanning nine. Rosenbach allowed three hits, fanned two and walked four batters.

However, a throwing error by Wicks in the fourth inning allowed Danny Wilkes to score the game's only run.

After Wicks had retired the first two batters of the inning Wilkes pounded a single to left field which Mike Connolly bobbled allowing the Falcon batter to advance to second. An error by third baseman Bob Koopman allowed catcher Ken Franco to reach first and Wilkes to advance to third.

Then came the deciding play of the game.

With Rosenbach at the plate Wicks tried to pick Franco off. The bail got away and Wilkes came in to score and Franco to advance to second.

Until the fourth inning Wicks had been outstanding, fanning six batters and not allowing a single batter to reach first base.

The Dons threatened to tie the score in their half of the fourth. Center fielder Chris DePrater led off with a single but was tagged out trying to steal second. On the next play, George Ellard blasted a double which probably would have scored DePrater with the tieing run. Connolly grounded out and Wicks walked but Bill Bevilicqua grounded out to third to end the inning.

Amador was again hurt by errors as it has been all season, committing five mistakes.

Two errors by the Dons almost allowed the Falcons to score again in the Fifth stanza.

Chris Neves opened the inning by reaching first on second baseman Mike Stanley's error. Keith Suer layed down a perfect sacrifice bunt to advance Neves to second. Another error by Stanley allowed Pat Driver to reach first while Neves went to third.

Pokes shock MV

You could tell it was going to be one of those days when the Monte Vista Mustangs got their first four batters on base and failed to score.

That's a neat trick, indeed, and seven innings of the same kind of bad luck and key mistakes toppled Monte Vista from the top of the East Bay Athletic League standings as the lowly Livermore Cowboys recorded a 5-2 win yesterday afternoon in Danville.

The game is under protest by Mustang Coach George Cockerton but he admitted "We didn't deserve to win this game. It was one of the worst games one my teams has ever played."

The Mustangs had plenty of chances to win but a gutty pitching performance by Livermore righthander Jeff Benton and timely use of the four hits that the Cowboys mustered produced the upset of the EBAL so far this season.

Monte Vista was 9-1 and ranked third in the East Bay while Livermore was 1-3 in league play and coming off a two - week layover, so the Cowboys had to be heavy underdogs. It looked even worse when Greg Bisbee led off the game with a walk, but Jeff Bernacil cut him down stealing.

Bill Howard punched a basehit and went to second on a wild pitch, but Bernacil cut him down trying to go to third. Kevin Jones followed with a walk and Mike Cockerton go on with an error but Brad Miller tried to bunt with a 3-0 count and two out and two on and popped up to the pitcher.

A walk, a misplayed sacrifice and a line single by Tim Palmer off starter Craig Robinson gave the Cowboys a 1-0 lead in the second, which was stretched to 3-0 in the fourth.

Ted Helgens walked the first two Livermore hitters in that stanza and then Charlie Bockover drove in pinch runner Ron Nicolosi with a single and Palmer went to third. With Pat Powles at the plate, Helgans wound up and Bockover borks from first. The sophomore righthander appeared to stumble in the middle of his motion and the home plate umpire called a balk immediately. which brought Nicolosi home from third and moved Bockover to second. Originally the umpire on the bases was going to

Nodlinski's double gives Grizzlies win

It took extra innings, but Tracy Nodlinski, a stocky designated hitter who resembles Frank Howard in his younger days, belted a two - out double between right - center field scoring Larry Walters to give California High a much needed 2-1 win over Dublin yesterday in the first game ever played on the Grizzlies new diamond.

It was nice to come back like that. You don't win many ball games the way we played today, offered Cal coach Bob Benatar, whose club moved to 2-2 in the tight East Bay Athletic League standings.

"Oh sure, the kids were happy and excited playing on a new field."

Especially in the last of the eighth. With one away, Walters, who pitched seven innings (ironically not receiving credit for the win), doubled down the left field line.

After Chuck Cary struck out, Dodlinski took Gael picher John Downing downtown with a powerful jolt which would have bounced - if there were a fence - off the outfield wall.

Walters, meanwhile, was only touched for four hits before giving way to C. Cary with none away in the eighth. Cary, who picked up the win, came on with base runners on first and second base.

The hard throwing right hander got Paul Gordson to sacrifice the runners to second and third, before Mark Martin, grounded into an incredible double play. From second baseman Bret Cary, to catcher Roger Hurlow, to first baseman Mike Daugherty. And that was that.

Downing was even more remarkable, however. The Gael lefthander held Cal hitless through four and one - third innings, before Hurlow bunted down the third base line in the fifth inning.

Downing allowed just four hits while striking out 10 and walking six amid the soft winds of San Ramon.

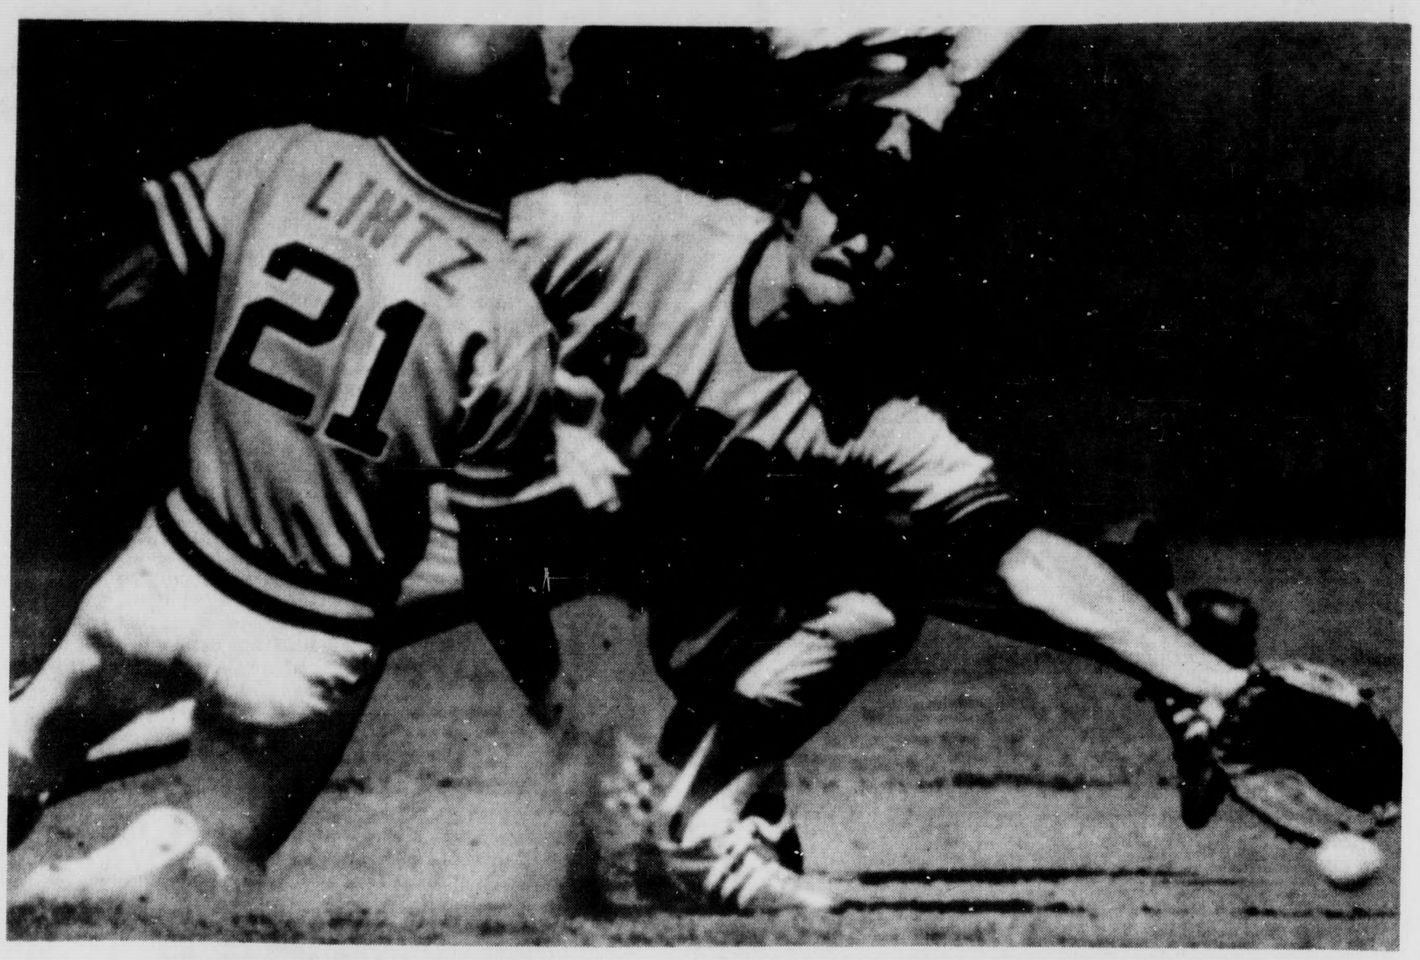
The Grizzlies put excellent scoring opportunities to waste in the sixth and seventh innings. They left the bases loaded in the sixth, and left one on in the seventh.

Cal didn't fare much better in the preceeding innings either. Downing retired 11 straight batsmen at one point.

Both clubs tallied relatively early. The Grizzlies went ahead 1-0 in the first when catcher Toni Schiebeli overthrew second base in an attempt to get C. Cary stealing; and Brother Bret, who reached on a walk, scored from third base with two outs on the play.

Richardson tied it with a solo homer to left field in the fourth inning.

Defensively, C. Cary cut down Richardson from center field attempting to score in the second inning. It was an excellent throw by Cary to Hurlow at the plate who, of course, applied the tag on the back — three feet from home plate.



Larry Linz of the Oakland A's slides into second for a steal as throw goes wide of the mark.

AL wrap-up

A's big inning beats Angels

OAKLAND — The way the Oakland A's are playing Charlie Finley may have a tough time getting back to his home office in Chicago.

The A's owner watched his youngsters score five times in the first inning en route to a 6-2 triumph over the California Angels Tuesday afternoon.

That left the Amazing Ones with a 4-1 record and right up there at the top of the American League West with the Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers.

Finley told one of his coaches, "I was figuring on going home after today's game, but I think I'll stick around for tomorrow's." Oakland and California are scheduled for a 1:30 p.m. meeting with Rick Langford or Mike Torrez to pitch for the A's and Wayne Simpson for California.

Oakland gave Angel starter Gary Ross a rude reception, jumping on him for six hits, including a pair of homers in the home half of the first. Dick Allen, the well - traveled major leaguer, slammed a two - run home run over the 375 - foot mark. Rookie Wayne Gross hit his second homer of the campaign, a solo blast that went out of the ball park in the right field sector. Rob Picciolo also singled in a run before the inning ended.

An error by Angel first sacker Don Baylor, who wore the A's uniform last season, allowed Larry Lintz to reach base safely after Billy North had led off the first with a single but was cut down at second trying to steal.

Then Mitchell Page, the exciting rookie left fielder who came to Oakland in the deal that sent Phil Garner to Pittsburgh, lined a double to left scoring Lintz.

Both California runs came via homers too. Former San Francisco Giant Bobby Bonds connected for a 365-foot blast over the left field fence on a 2-1 Stan Bahnsen offering in the initial inning.

In the fourth designated hitter Tony Solaita sent one out of the park at the 340-foot mark in left.

Bahnsen worked the first six innings for the A's and picked up his first victory against no losses. He allowed the supposedly power-laden Angels only four hits and struck out five.

Dave Giusti, who also came to Oakland in the Garner deal, mopped up for Bahnsen, giving just one hit in three innings.

Oakland tore into California pitching for 14 hits. Page, who doubled in Lintz in the eighth inning for the final Oakland run, was three for five.

The A's turned in three double plays with Picciolo figuring in two of them. The former Pepperdine athlete also robbed Bobby Grich of a base hit in the sixth inning with a brilliant fielding play.

Lintz, who collected his first American League hit in the eighth inning, stole three bases.

Joe Rudi, who earned Player of the Week honors in the American League for his early-season bat work, was held without a hit Tuesday. He bounced into a 5-4-3 double play to end the contest.

A's Manager Jack McKeon said, "I'm not surprised at the way we're playing. I just hope it becomes a permanent thing."

White Sox 5, Red Sox 2 — Jorge Orta had three hits to lead Chicago past Boston in the White Sox's home opener.

Orta doubled home a run in the first inning and added an RBI single in the second to cap a four-run White Sox attack. Orta also belted a triple.

A crowd of 34,612 watched the ball game. Chicago is now 2-2 and the Red Sox are 0-3.

Orioles 1, Brewers 0 — Jim Palmer fired a two-hitter to lead Baltimore past host Milwaukee.

Rick Dempsey singled home Eddie Murray in the ninth inning to give the Orioles the tight victory.

Palmer (1-1), allowed a single in the second inning and one in the ninth.

A crowd of 55,120 fans watched the contest, the largest ever in County Stadium. — by Don Zupan

EBAL softball

AV clubs Falcons

Amador Valley opened its defense of the East Bay Athletic League softball championship with a convicing 10-2 victory over Foothill yesterday.

In another EBAL contest San Ramon scored all its runs in the first inning to take a 9-5 win over Granada.

Deanna Marengo was the winning pitcher for the Dons, striking out seven batters.

There were a host of hitting stars for Amador Valley. Cindy Aafedt led the winners with three runs, two hits and an RBI. Jayne Kuhns, one of the league's finest all-around athletes, added two runs and a double.

Jamie Watson tripled for the Dons and Debbie Oxsen stole two bases in a big fourth inning.

Lynn Fruchtenicht was the losing pitcher. However, she belted two doubles and had two RBI's for the Falcons. Kim Fruzetti added two hits and scored a run for Foothill.

San Ramon scored its nine-first inning runs with just one hit but received nine walks and was aided by two errors.

The Matadors fought back gradually, scoring twice in the first, once in the fifth and twice in the sixth inning.

Janette Raventos was the winning pitcher, giving up no walks in the contest. Tucker was the loser for the Matadors.

Amador has won the EBAL crown the past four seasons.

Dons' Jayne Kuhns takes a swing against Foothill yesterday.

Sports in Brief

'Quakes Rowlands injured

SAN JOSE — The San Jose Earthquakes will be without starting center defender John Rowlands until April 30 at the earliest. Rowlands suffered a hairline fracture in his left foot in Saturday night's season-opening 3-0 defeat at the hands of the Los Angeles Aztecs here.

The Earthquakes' next game will be at Vancouver Saturday.

Bjorn wins

NAIROBI — Sweden's Bjorn Waldegaard won the "toughest, wettest and hardest" safari auto rally in history yesterday after battling thunderstorms, flash floods and mud the entire kilometers in a Ford Escort.

Only 12 of 68 starters managed to compete the treacherous course across Kenya's wild game country and the Great Rift Valley.

In five NCAA tournament basketball games last season, Jim Lee of Syracuse scored a total of 119 points.

Most college basketball wins in one season is a record 36 held by Kentucky's 1948 team. Kentucky lost three times that season but won the NCAA title.

Retired coach John Wooden led UCLA to the NCAA basketball crown 10 times in the past 12 seasons.

award Bockover third because he was more than halfway to second when the balk was called but cooler heads prevailed and he was moved to second.

However, the rattled Helgans wound up again and Bockover easily stole third. But the young pitcher bore down and struck out Cary Dean to end the inning and keep Monte Vist in the game.

And when Ken Krey and Steve Jayko led off the fourth with hits, it looked like the Mustangs were right back in it. But Tony Adams' sacrifice bunt resulted in a double play when Krey was picked off third on what might generously be termed a questionable call. But it stood, and the heart went out of the Mustang rally.

Two more runs scored for Livermore in the fifth on a hit, a walk, a sperifice, a passed ball and an error to make it 5-0. But Mike Cockerton's double led to two runs in the Mustang sixth, thanks to an error and a Jayko sacrifice fly, but a bases - loaded, one out really was snuffed out by junior righthander Jeff Perry in the bottom of the seventh and Livermore had its second win of the EBAL season.

Monte Vista faces archrival San Ramon Friday at the school on the hill and that match is now a must game for the Mustangs. A loss there would drop Monte Vista two games back of the leader - which is a lot to make up in a short season.

Cockerton saved righthander Brad Miller for the Wolves, and now the pressure is really on the junior and his teammates.

In a bit of good news, the Mustang junior varsity evened its mark at 2-2-1 by coming up with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to win 4-3. Marty Levy got the win and scored the tying run. An error let Jeff Southwick cross the plate with the winner with two outs in the last inning.

MV's Jones CC winner

Shortstop Kevin Jones of Monte Vista High School has been named this week's Contra Costa County winner of the Flecto Sports Award.

Jones, a 5-10, 160-pounder, had a super Diablo Valley Easter Tournament last week in Concord, pacing his team to a tourney victory and playing a big part in the derailing of the previously number one ranked team in the East Bay, Clayton Valley, in the championship game.

Against Clayton, Jones delivered a triple and two RBI as the Mustangs upset the Eagles, 6-3, to claim the title. That effort was purely routine, though.

For the tournament, Jones posted a whopping batting average of .545, going six for 11, including a home run, two triples and seven run batted in. Jones also scored five runs, thus singlehandedly accounting for the bulk of Monte Vista's offense. The Mustangs won the tourney by beating Antioch, 6-2, Concord, 5-4, and Clatyon by the 6-3 count.

Jones was named to the all-tourney team.

In Alameda County the winner of the award was also a baseball player, Mike Hankins of Skyline High School. Hankins clouted three home runs and had four other hits in 11 at bats to be honored as the Most Valuable Player in the Bushrod Tournament in Oakland.

Skyline took two of three games in the tourney, winning the high scoring affairs while losing a 3-2 decision to Castlemont. In the first game, against Encinal, Hankins drilled a solo homer and a grand slam as the Titans outlasted Encinal, 18-15.

Skyline next played Castlemont, where Hankins homered in a losing effort, and the Titans ended the tourney with a 17-2 rout of McClymonds. In that contest, Hankins was 2 for 2 and drew three walks.

All told, Hankins ended the tournament with a dozen RBI, scored three runs and swiped a trio of bases.

The other nominee from Alameda County was Hayward High School first baseman Dave Furguson. Furguson had six RBI and was four for 11 as Hayward won the Vern Thornack Easter Tourney last week.

Doubles sweep gives Gaels win

Powered by a sweep of the doubles events, Dublin High's girls tennis team handed California a 5-2 setback while Monte Vista dominated most of the day in defeating Livermore 6-1 in yesterday's East Bay Athletic league action.

In the Dublin match, the two teams played even in the singles events. Evelyn King and Cheryl Smith each registered a victory, by near like scores of 6-2, 6-0 and 6-0, 6-2, respectively. Singles winners for California were Phyllis Malm and Marquerite Connelly.

Stephanie Sibilia and Chris Lozano started the doubles power play for Dublin, defeating Myrna Stewart and Connie O'Grady 6-2, 7-5. That proved to be the closest of the doubles matches, as Jane Callendar and Carol Allen put together a 6-0, 6-1 win and Jay Howarth teamed with Cindy Grant to gain a 6-1, 6-0 decision.

In Livermore the day began pretty well for the home squad, but tapered off very soon.

Laurie Larson stopped Monte Vista's Alice Settle in the opening match, 7-6, 6-1 for the only Livermore win of the day. Two matches went to three sets, one a singles battle and the other in doubles competition.

Monte Vista's number three player, Lori Hyman sandwiched winning sets around an unvictorious one for a 6-0, 3-6, 6-2 win over Monica Panusch and Margeret Cockerton and Cary Robertson edged Leslie Buchannon and Donna DiGrazia 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The loss dropped Livermore's mark to 2-3 in EBAL play.

Leafs impress in playoffs

The presumption by a lot of National Hockey League fans was that the Stanley Cup finals would be played out by last season's participants, the Philadelphia Flyers and Montreal Canadians.

But some other Canadians have a different aidea.

Perhaps it's looking a bit too far into the future — it is, after all, only the quarter-final round but while the Canadians were displaying their championship brand of hockey by mauling St. Louis 7-2, Monday night the Toronto Maple Leafs were muscling their way into the picture by outmuscling the Flyers 3-2.

In the two other best - of - seven openers Monday night, the New York Islanders beat Buffalo 4-2 and Boston bombed Los Angeles 8-3. The four quarter-finals resume Wednesday night.

"We felt if we ever were going to win one here, this was our best chance," Leafs' scoring leader Lanny McDonald said after Toronto's upset in Philadelphia. "I hoped we could get the jump on them — and we did that."

And McDonald acknowledged that the Flyers "were not as sharp as they would have liked to have been after the layoff," a first-round bye for the Flyers during which Toronto topped Pittsburgh.

Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero agreed the brief hiatus was a drawback. "The only time a bye helps is when you're injured," he said. "We were healthy." And goalie Bernie Parent, the victim of Toronto's three - goal burst in the first period, added: "We felt pretty good going into the game. But I guess we didn't think we'd be behind on our timing. I guess that layoff hurt."

Guy Lafleur's three goals and three assists led the Canadians' assault against the outgunned Blues at Montreal's Forum. Larry Robinson, Jacques Lemaire, Guy Lapointe and Bill Nyrop also scored for Montreal, which led from the opening shot of the game. Lafleur's goal came after just 51 seconds of play.

"No matter which team you play, you have to go out and get off to a good start right off the bat," said Lafleur, whose six points matched a playoff record. "You have to try and get the lead right away. If the other team gets the lead, then they are going to play more defensively."

And St. Louis Coach Emile Francis said of Lafleur: "I hope we find some way to stop him. If we don't, it will be a short series."

Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith, whose Sabres unleashed 39 shots at Islanders' netminder Billy Smith, warned: "If we can get the same amount of chances as we did, we aren't going to miss that many chances again."

What the Islanders did was to cool off Buffalo's hot skaters. "We had to slow them down to our style and I think we accomplished that," said center Lorne Henning. "In the first game, everyone likes to set the tone for a series."

The first-round bye that hurt the Flyers clearly helped the Bruins, who stampeded to a 5-0 lead in the first period — three of the goals by Bobby Schmautz — and coasted past the Kings.

hopes of a win for Granada.

The Mats, like San Ramon, received strength form the bottom of the lineup in scoring the game's first three runs in the second inning.

Kevin Gosney laced a one-out single and Don Farrell moved him to third with a sharp single up the middle.

After Bob Boyle walked to load the bases, Parness helped himself out with a slicing double down the right - field line that scored two runs.

Hudson bounded a grounder to shortstop, but SR's Rosgen alertly came home with the throw to catch Boyle easily.

The Mats scored their final run of the inning on an error by Rosgen on a tough play. Davis hit a sharp grounder right at the shortstop, who was handcuffed by the ball and it squirted through his legs, Parness scoring.

The Wolves will come back with a tough game on Friday, as they host the league - leading Monte Vista Mustangs in an early EBAL crucial. The Matadors, fighting to stay in contention, will go up against Foothill.

Seaver has 5-hitter

NEW YORK — Tom Seaver fired a five-hitter for his 40th career shutout and drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single as the New York Mets opened their home season Tuesday by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0.

The Cardinals, who scored 28 runs in sweeping their first three games from Pittsburgh, managed only a double by pitcher Eric Rasmussen and four singles. Seaver struck out five and gave up no walks in recording his second victory in as many starts.

John Milner gave the Mets a 1-0 lead with a first-inning home run off Rasmussen. Seaver, who batted only .085 with three runs batted in last season, delivered his big hit in the second.

Ed Kranepool opened the inning with a double and took third on John Stearns' grounder. After Roy Staiger walked and Bud Harrelson was hit by a pitch, Seaver jumped on an 0-2 delivery and drilled a low line drive that skipped off the glove of shortstop Garry Templeton into short center field.

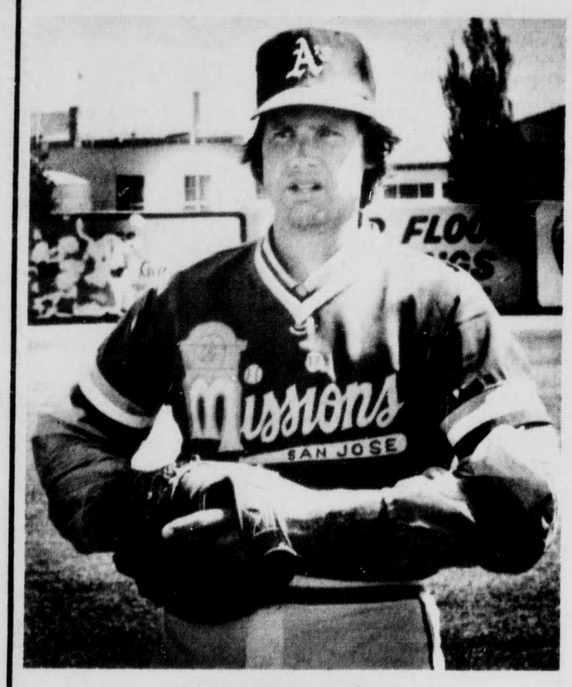
Paul Mitchell

Paul's mixed feelings



Paul Mitchell

SAN JOSE — Paul Mitchell just signed a three-year contract with the Oakland A's, but that doesn't mean the Pleasanton resident is delighted to be part of Charlies Finley's organization.

"I think I could've been handled a lot better," says Mitchell, who finds himself starting the season on the AAA level for the second year in a row.

Unsigned for much of spring training, Mitchell figured he was doing Finley a favor by not bugging the beleaguered A's owner during Charlie O's court battle with commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Finley showed his appreciation by ordering Paul, and three other unsigned A's, benched for however long they remained without contract. For Mitchell, the delays — as long as eight days without a mound appearance — took a drastic toll.

His earned run average ballooned to 9.00 and Mitchell's reward was a demotion to the Pacific Coast League San Jose Missions, for whom he'll pitch the season opener with Spokane tomorrow night.

"How would you feel?" he asked rhetorically. "The way I feel, with the year I had last year, I shouldn't pitch my way out of a job during spring training."

Last year's trip to the minors — at Tucson — came under different circumstances. Mitchell had just come to the A's from Baltimore in the trade that sent Reggie Jackson and Ken Holtzman to the Orioles.

At the Oriole camp, he'd pulled a hamstring badly and pitched only two innings of Grapefruit League ball. With the season opener just days away, Oakland pitching coach Wes Stock didn't want to harass Mitchell, already under pressure as Holtzman's "replacement."

"I was here, there and everywhere with my pitches," recalled the 6-1, 190-pound right-hander, gesturing high, low, inside and outside. "Wes told me not to worry, to just go out and throw."

So, Mitchell went to Tucson and started four games, winning three and chalking up a 2.35 e.r.a. while striking out 17 batters in 22 innings.

Recalled to Oakland in late April, Mitchell slowly rounded into shape and was a key factor in the A's incredible stretch drive that almost overhauled eventual champion Kansas City for the American League's Western Division crown.

He finished 9-7, with many of those wins coming during the second half of the season, and walked just 30 hitters in 142 innings.

After the season, Paul, and his wife Liz, packed up their dog Shutout and moved into a home in the Stoneridge area of Pleasanton. And though he likes valley life, Mitchell says he's just innings away from another move.

"I don't know, I guess Charlie and I had a little misunderstanding," he said at yesterday's Mission camera day, "But, if I'm not out of here after four starts, I'm gonna think about demanding a trade."

Mitchell admits he needs a little work, but says the culture shock of coming into the A's organization has left some scars.

"I've been a winner every year I've been in pro ball," Mitchell, who boasts a 63-30 overal record in five previous AL and minor league seasons. "It's trouble enough pitching in the big league's without all these other problems.

"I came over from a great organization (the Orioles)," he said by way of comparison with Finley's ramshackle set-up.

The message is short, but clear: if the A's don't call him up, Paul Mitchell would still like to be missin' from the Missions.

Chicago Cubs' Wrigley dies

CHICAGO — Philip K. Wrigley, whose name was a symbol of nickel chewing gum and day baseball, died Tuesday.

Wrigley, chairman of the gum company his father founded and owner of the Chicago Cubs, died of a gastrointestinal hemorrhage, a spokesman for the William Wrigley Jr. Co. said. He was 82.

He was stricken Monday night at his resort home in Lake Geneva, Wis., and died Tuesday at Lakeland Hospital in Elkhorn, Wis.

Funeral arrangments were incomplete.

Wrigley, whose wealth has been estimated at more than $100 million, preferred the life of a recluse, saying once his ambition was "to go live in a cave somewhere."

A mechanical wizard, he enjoyed tinkering with cars in his garage. He flunked out of the University of Chicago but taught aviation mechanics in World War I at Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

General Motors once adapted some of his ideas on ignition systems for its production models, and his invention of a nonslip screwdriver was the result of his making electrical and other repairs around his Lake Geneva home.

Wrigley liked watching baseball on TV better than at the ball park and usually stayed out of day-to-day operation of the Cubs unless a big star or manager was involved. But when he took a hand, controversy usually followed.

Earlier this season, he traded National League batting champion Bill Madlock rather than submit to what Wrigley considered exorbitant salary demands.

Wrigley inherited both the gum company and the baseball team from his father, William Wrigley Jr.

"I'm not sure I'm succeeding on my own merits," he said when he assumed the presidency of the gum company at the age of 29. "I have the fear that 'pull' and the fact that I am my father's son had much to do with my election."

The gum company is the world's largest with profits last year of more than $30 million. The Cubs, while the first team ever to finish last and draw a million fans, have not won a championship since 1945, a dry spell longer than that of any other major league club.

Known for unorthodox attempts to make the Cubs a winner, Wrigley sometimes used the same approach in his business.

He once quit the board of directors over a suggestion that the quality of gum be reduced in the interest of bigger profits. He returned at a salary of $1 a year when some of the directors resigned.

He expressed disappointment, when in 1971, the company raised the price of chewing gum from 5 cents a pack. Until then the price for a five-stick package had remained the same since the founding of the company in 1893.

He once measured the size of a double martini in the Wrigley building restaurant and discovered it was not twice the size of a regular drink. He ordered new glasses and now, while no doubles are served, the typical libation carries 3 to 3½ ounces of liquor.

One of his proudest achievements was finally coming up with a chewing gum in 1975 that didn't stick to dentures. Wrigley had been searching for such a gum since the 1950s.

Philip Knight Wrigley was born Dec. 5, 1894, at the Plaza Hotel on Chicago's Gold Coast.

His father had come to Chicago from the East in 1891 and headed a soap and baking soda company before going into the gum business.

After World War I, Wrigley worked in his father's factories in Canada and Brooklyn before becoming president of the company.

About the same time, his father, with a group of civic leaders, acquired the Cubs. The senior Wrigley died in 1932 and P.K. became owner of the Cubs.

The Cubs won pennants in 1932 and 1935. In 1938, Wrigley fired Manager Charley Grimm and replaced him with catcher Gabby Hartnett, who headed the team toward another pennant.

Grimm came back in 1944 to take over a struggling team and in 1945 guided the Cubs to their last pennant.

As the Cubs floundered after the war, Wrigley's holdings grew to some 30 businesses ranging from hotels and resorts to Catalina Island off the Southern California coast.

In 1960, Wrigley rehired Grimm as manager but before the season ended took Lou Boudreau out of the broadcast booth to replace Grimm and sent Grimm into the radio booth. That didn't work, either.

In 1961, Wrigley came up with his College of Coaches or "Coach of the Month" plan. The bizarre idea was to have from eight to 12 managers rotating throughout the Cubs' system with each of them at one time or another becoming the "head coach."

The system was a flop. In 1962, the Cubs finished ninth. Still, Wrigley retained the "College" through the 1965 season when he finally hired Leo Durocher.

However, the rally was killed on a brillant double play started by Stanley. Barry Kortan hit a grounder to the second baseman who threw to first for the first out. First baseman Sam Jorgensen then threw the ball to catcher Mike Hoff who tagged Neves for the final out.

The win gives Foothill a 1-4 EBAL record while Amador Valley, the league's second place team last year and a North Coast Section playoff representive, dropped to 2-3.

— By Gary Brown

Both golfers tied after 72 holes at 286. After an 18-hole playoff both were tied again with 70s. Another 18 holes found them deadlocked with 72s. In the third 18-hold playoff Smith beat Sarazen, 66 to 70.

On the final Thursday in January, Cauthen failed to ride a winner for the second time during his first 22 days at the oval. He had 52 winners in his first 167 rides at the New York Track, operating mostly in below-freezing weather.

Life Of Howard Hughes TV Special

"The Amazing Howard Hughes," a four - hour special which traces the life and career of one of the world's most wealthy and mysterious men, will be broadcast in two parts Wednesday, and Thursday nights at 9 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

The special is based on the book "Howard the Amazing Mr. Hughes" by Noah Dietrich, longtime associate of the reclusive Hughes, and Bob Thomas, veteran Hollywood correspondent for the Associated Press. In starring roles are Tommy Lee Jones as Hughes and Ed Flanders as Dietrich.

The first part of the four - hour special follows Hughes from his takeover of the Hughes Tool Co. when he was 18 to the start of his famous record - breaking world flight in 1938. During this period, he hired Dietrich to oversee his rapidly expansive ventures while he pursued his interests in aviation, golf, film - making and Hollywood starlets.

The triumphs and tragedies of Hughes' middle and final years are examined in the conclusion of the special. Events of this period which are emphasized in the special are Hughes' critical injury as a result of a plane crash, and his involvement in an historic Senate probe pertaining to war profits.

As years follow, Hughes' behavior changes radically. He isolates himself from others and develops a phobia about germs, but his business activities continue until his death in April 1976.

Jones, the young star of "Jackson County Jail" and the soon - to - be - released "Rolling Thunder," began acting in New York, where he appeared on Broadway in "Ulysses in Nighttown" with Zero Mostel," "A Patriot for Me," and "Four on a Garden." His television credits include guest appearances on "Baretta" and "Charlie's Angels."

Flanders, who recently won acclaim for his performance in the one - man television special "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking," starred in the television specials "A Moon for the Misbegotten" (for which he won the Tony Award for his Broadway performance), "The Legend of Lizzie Borden," and "Things in Their Season," a "GE Theater" presentation. He also appeared in the stage and film versions of "The trial of the Catonsville Nine" and in several episodes of "Hawaii Five - O."

Paper drive

The Harvest Park Home and School Club of Pleasanton is conducting a paper drive this week with residents encouraged to leave their bundled papers at the curb on Saturday for pickup. Valley residents may also bring their bundled papers to Harvest Park School on Valley Avenue (the bin is open one hour after school and all day Saturday and Sunday) or call 462-2849 for pickup. Gathering papers to be bundled here are sixth graders Scott Maines and Jeff Herwatt, Margaret Sherinian of the Home and School Club and assistant principal Robert Tanghe. (Times photo)

SRV spurs program

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District will operate several schools this summer in addition to an Outdoor Education Program, a creative arts program, and for the first time, two intermediate summer schools to meet the needs of present sixth and seventh graders.

Elementary summer school programs will be held at the following schools beginning June 16 to July 15: Country Club, Walt Disney, John Baldwin, Stone Valley, Twin Creeks, Montair, Rancho Romero, Vista Grande, and Green Valley.

Greenbrook summer school will begin a week later, June 23 through July 22, due to the late dismissal date from the regular school program.

Elementary classes will introduce students to such learning experiences as beginning ballet, art, gymnastics, speech and language development, reading and math, camping, cooking, music and drama, and the wild kingdom, which enables K-6 students to discover the animal world through art, science, and song.

California High School and Charlotte Wood will offer intermediate summer programs beginning June 16 thru July 15 and June 20 through July 19, Cal High being the latter session.

Summer school for high school students will be offered from June 20 through August 2 at California High and Monte Vista High. Classes scheduled range from physical education, fine arts, and English and mathematics, to industrial arts, home economics, and science and such miscellaneous courses as work experience education, independent study, career and occupational counseling and the special environmental education programs "Big Foot" and "Up, Up and Away."

The latter is a new Outdoor Education Class which combines mountaineering skills, natural history, science activities, and backpacking in the Minaret Wilderness Area and Yosemite National Park with classroom activities, July 6 through July 25.

"Big Foot" is a course offered to all high school students, and is a 10-12 day backpacking trip into the Trinity Alps. Two trips are scheduled for July 11 through July 22, and August 8 through August 19. The environmental course will focus on plant study, wild animal behavior, history, conservation, map interpretation, and survival techniques.

Five additional programs will be offered in the "Mountains to the Sea" outdoor educational schedule. Study trips to Mendocino, Bear River, Tuolumne, Northern California, and Camping Up the California Coast will also be offered in the upcoming summer program.

A special creative arts program will be offered to grades 3-7 at California High focusing on cultural activities, including music, foods, and art appreciation.

The 1977 summer Music Camp will be held August 30 through September 3 at Camp Cazadero in the Russian River redwood country. The musical study, offered to high school students, will include marching band; brass choir; woodwind, string, and percussion ensembles; orchestra; and jazz ensembles.

Brochures for each summer school and special programs are now available. AC Transit bus schedules for the school district area will also be included with the Outdoor Education information.

For further information on any of th the summer offerings, contact summer school coordinator Nancy Howe at the Education Center, 837-1511, ext. 210.

"The school district, summer school principals, and teachers are excited about the classes and new programs being offered this year," Ms. Howe commented, "and we feel the children in the district have the opportunity for unique and varied learning experiences under the planned program."

Chabot offers free home study variety

Chabot College Library Independent Study Center (LISC) is currently registering students in its Home Study program.

The Home Study courses are being offered through the public libraries in Dublin, Pleasanton, Livermore, and San Leandro. The college representative will be available at the Dublin Library on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Livermore Library on Mondays from 2 to 6 p.m. and at Pleasanton Library on Thursdays from 2 to 6 p.m.

Course topics include managing your money, math for business, beginning bookkeeping, business letter writing, law of contracts, law of sales, negotiable instruments, review of basic math, punctuation, home nutrition, home decoration, introduction to chess, and understanding weather.

There is no fee for these courses for residents of the above cities who qualify as California residents, although students must purchase their own books. For further information, see the college representative at the public libraries mentioned above or call 782-3000, ext. 477. The last day to register for this quarter is April 22.

Chabot College and a number of local congregations jointly sponsor a unique series of community interest courses.

Associate Dean of Instruction Shannon Christiansen says that he is not aware of a program anywhere in the country in which a community college and local churches co-sponsor courses on religious history.

Two of the courses offered are: Old Testament and New Testament. The Old Testament course (Religious Studies 128-71) is offered Tuesdays at Canyon High School in Castro Valley in Room F-25 from 7 to 9:15 p.m. The course is taught by Brian Mahoney, an ordained minister in the Little Brown Church of Sunol. He has a Masters of Divinity degree with a major in Philosophy of Religion.

The New Testament course (Religious Studies 127-71) is on Monday at Canyon in Room F-25 from 7 to 9:15 p.m.

Other Religious Studies courses include: Acts of the Apostles, the Life and Teachings of Jesus, Varieies of Meditation, the Prophetic Witness, New Testament Greek-Epistles and Old Testament-Exodus.

Other courses offered in this series include: Couple and Family Communication, Personal Growth, Self - Actualization, Raising Children for Autonomy, Transactional Analysis and Genealogy.

Interested persons may register for these courses at the class session. Additional information about the other courses and their locations can be obtained by calling Chabot College at 782-3000, ext. 450.

Noted geriatric physician E.Fritz Schmerl will again teach his lecture course on Healthy Aging at Chabot College during the spring quarter.

The physiological process of human aging and its effects will be reviewed, along with methods of maintaining health and vigor throughout a lifetime.

The class is being held in Room 914 of the Chabot campus in Hayward, Wednesdays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., through June 22.

One unit of college credit is available and students can enroll by attending class on Wednesday.

Fishing for funds and facts are Kin Gordon (center). He is South Contra County Residential Chairman for the upcoming Cancer Crusade. On his left is San Ramon Chairman, Vicki Freeberg. She can come up with the latest cancer facts and figures. Joyce McCue, assistant San Ramon chairman, suggests m-o-n-e-y will help find a way to end the nation's number two killer through donations to the American Cancer Society. The San Ramon leaders are recruiting helpers now for the annual fund raising and educational effort during April which is national cancer control month.

Anti-cancer fund drive set in SRV

DANVILLE — Kin Gordon, 22, of Danville has accepted appointment as South Contra Costa chairman for the 1977 Cancer Crusade.

He is an active member of the San Ramon Valley Jaycees.

Gordon is selecting volunteers to assist him in this year's fund-raising and educational effort. Both will support the American Cancer Society's year-round programs of research, education and service to patients.

He invites volunteers to contact him at 837-6250.

Gordn said one-third of the money raised through the annual Cancer crusade goes directly to scientific research to find a final answer to incurable cancers. 40 per cent goes to educate people to current treatment methods that can save their lives if patients and doctors are alerted in time.

"The balance of Cancer Crusade contributons goes to services, to local patients and their families," Gordon said.

Among these, he explained, are transportation to treatment centers when needed.

Jury deliberates in Dublin deaths

Barry was "humiliated" in front of his father by his friends, claimed Morris. "He'd punch him out for anything . . . trivial things."

Finally, in tears because his father had called him a "fairy" and effectively disowned him, Barry loaded his .22 rifle and shot first his father then his mother while David was in the kitchen getting coffee.

Pointing the gun at David, Barry ordered his friend to beat the sleeping grandfather with a cold steel chisel.

When David's half-hearted attempts failed — the autopsy revealed only minor scalp wounds and no broken skull bones — Barry "picks up this 80-year-old man and heaves him across the room on top of his mother," Morris said, pumping three shots into the old man.

"Why use David?" Morris asked rhetorically.

"So he could have a witness proving his masculinity to his father . . . and he had to have that person involved to keep him quiet."

"It could have been any 16-year-old in Dublin who happened to be with Barry that night," he said.

Not so, argued deputy district attorney Michael Cardoza.

"(Morris) points Barry to be the real bad buy . . . he must have done it . . . Barry's the heavy here," said Cardoza.

"But we're not trying Barry Braeseke."

Young David is not a "typical 16-year-old. You (the jury) know that's a very mature 16-year-old, a 16-year-old man who testified."

Barker was not confused and afraid of Braeseke, Cardoza argued, and his threats to the youth and his parents.

The boy "has a lousy reputation for peace and quiet in the neighborhood," and was known for his brutal, tortuous slaying of pet chickens.

"They fed each other . . they supplied each other. . . . Without David Barker, Barry Braeseke would not be on trial later.

"We have three dead bodies. Why? Because (Braeseke) found someone who would help him."

Dimes march
